Hoover
One Wild Day
High Finance Overdid It
Politics, Stocks, Money

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1928, by Star Co.

MR. HOOVER, whose nomination is conceded by those that oppose it, is a trained engineer, understanding national problems, a first-class business man, a good organizer.

The people know him, and have seen him at work for years. There is no uncertainty, no "dark horse," no meeting of "big men" in a back room to hand the people their candidate. This time they choose him for themselves.

The Stock Exchange, yesterday, enjoyed what you might call a wild day. Five and a quarter million shares sold, the ticker still going frantically at 4:53 o'clock.

Many, this morning, wish they had taken the advice often printed here, "DON'T GAMBLE."

The scare must run its course. Those new to Wall Street will sell stocks as foolishly as they bought them.

But VALUES HAVEN'T BEEN HURT. Stocks by the dozen are selling far below their intrinsic worth. The public will come to its senses, little fish will be thrown back out of the Street to gather more money. And the country's prosperity will go ahead.

High finance, that didn't want Hoover and thought it wise to make business look doubtful for a while, succeeded, perhaps, beyond its plans.

General Dawes probably will be nominated for Vice-President. The country, regardless of politics, will have wise leadership, as it has had under President Coolidge, and prosperity will go ahead.

Unfortunately, it will not restore to many the lost savings of a lifetime. Only experience can teach the majority.

Yesterday it was said "only a miracle can prevent Hoover's nomination." That would be miracle No. 2.

The first miracle is the possibility of Hoover's nomination, in spite of the fact that Wall Street didn't want him and said so. That's a big enough miracle for one convention.

In case you have time to read about it, Miss Mabel Boll had hopped, and Miss Earhart, when this was written, had failed to hop across the Atlantic.

Who would have thought 10 years ago that anything could smother men's interest in two women starting to fly the Atlantic the same day.

"On India's coral strands," and far inland, Standard Oil has been selling gasoline at cut prices.

British Royal Dutch and Burmah Company declare war against Standard. Standard Oil gets in Russia oil sold in India, outraging Britain's idea that no American should engage seriously in world-wide trade.

British gentlemen will know when they finish with Standard Oil that they have had a fight.

Chang, the Chinese war lord, is dead. A bomb killed him, Japan says so.

Hurricane in Poland, houses torn apart and burned, near Warsaw.

Samoan natives ruled by New Zealand protest to the League of Nations against prohibition. Forty million Americans can assure them that the protesting won't do them any good.

Athens is having more riots, soldiers stoned.

But nobody cares about all that. POLITICS, MONEY, STOCKS command attention now.

Bargain day in Wall Street for big fellows with real money. Little fish throw good stocks overboard to protect cats and dogs. Good stocks drop, while the cats and dogs struggle for life.

That is the bargain hunter's opportunity.

DON'T GAMBLE. And, if it is too late to take that advice, turn over a new leaf. Keep what you have left, if anything, and when this storm blows over buy what you PAY FOR.

U. S. Fliers Deserve Reward

THE flight of the Southern Cross from Oakland, Cal., to Sydney, Australia, ranks as one of the greatest achievements in aviation.

History will record the skill and daring of the two Australian pilots, Charles Kingsford-Smith and C. T. P. Ulm, and the technical accomplishments of the two Americans, Harry Lyon and James Warner.

The Australian Commonwealth lost no time in rewarding its famous sons for their feat in bridging two continents over the vast and lonely Pacific ocean. Its government voted them $25,000. The world knows how richly they deserved recognition.

No less remarkable and no less commendable was the part played by the two Americans in the great fight. Harry Lyon displayed navigation skill almost unbelievable. James Warner thrilled the world with his word picture of the plane and the perils with which it was beset.

Believing that these two Americans are worthy of reward, and that America should be as proud of Lyon and Warner, the Hearst papers are raising a national purse and have started the fund with a contribution of $5000.

The Boston Evening American has taken the lead in raising this purse. It should grow rapidly and mount high. Every public spirited citizen should shoulder a share in this plan to reward Lyon and Warner commensurate with their achievement.

Send in your share of the purse to the Flight Editor of the Boston Evening American.

MOSES, DEFIANT IN HIS KEYNOTE, WANTS FIGHT

Kansas City, June 13 (AP)—Declaring the Republican party would not shirk its responsibility toward agriculture, Sen. Moses of New Hampshire, as permanent chairman of the national convention, told the assembly today that the party would enter the campaign "in no posture of defense."

"We come upon the field aggressively militant," he said. "We intend to carry this fight to the enemy. And we challenge them to bring forth their strongest champion.

"The honor you have conferred upon me is very great," the chairman began, "and I thank you for it. The duties which your generous actions lay upon me may prove to be difficult, but I hope to be able to perform them satisfactorily.

"Inevitably, in a party thoroughly national in its vision and contact

CARDS WIN THIRD IN ROW OVER BRAVES

Braves Field, June 13—Home runs into the left field fly-trap today again spelled the doom of the Braves, the Cards winning their third straight game of the series.

Chick Hafey hit circuit drives on his first two trips to the platter, while Jim Bottomley hit his third homer in two days with one on in the third. These three drives were the only hits made off "Lefty" Brandt in the first four innings, but they gave the Cards a 4-1 lead as the Braves could do little against Flint Rhem.

MRS. THAYER, LIGGETT ON G. O. P. COMMITTEE

Kansas City, June 13 (AP)—Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer of Lancaster was elected member of the Republican national committee from Massachusetts over Mrs. Frank Roe Batchelder of Worcester by a vote of 21 to 18 today. Her election ended one of the closest contests ever waged for a place on the national committee and one which has caused sharp discord in Massachusetts Republican ranks.

So close was the contest that after the Massachusetts delegation went into session this morning at headquarters in the Hotel Muehlebach a vote was taken on a compromise plan whereby each of the women would serve on the committee for two years. After the compromise mo-

Boston Girl Again Fails to Hop Off

Trepassey Bay, N. F., June 13 (INS)—Miss Amelia Earhart of Boston and her two flying companions, made two unsuccessful efforts today to hop off in the transatlantic monoplane Friendship for Europe.

In the first effort the plane covered three miles and in the second two miles, but failed to rise from the water owing to the heavy weight it carried.

After the second failure the plane was towed to the extreme northeastern part of the harbor where, it was believed, lifting conditions were better.

The weather was clear with a light west wind. Later in the day it was announced that start of the flight had been postponed until tomorrow.

Harbor Grace, N. F., June 13 (AP)—Plans to take off for Europe at 2:30 a. m. eastern daylight saving time tomorrow morning were announced this afternoon by the crew of the monoplane Columbia.

The work of refuelling the plane

STOCK RALLY CHECKS THE TIDE OF REACTION

Sharp rallies in railroad, motor, oil and specialty stocks today turned the tide of reaction which has held sway for more than a week in Wall Street. The rise restored a good measure of the losses sustained by the active stocks in that period.

New York Central jumped nearly 6 points to 175; General Motors rose 6 points to 182; Curtiss Aero recovered 10 points and Radio 6.

Atlantic Refining led the oils with a 3-point recovery, and strong buying demand was exhibited for the Standard Oils of New York, New Jersey and California.

Chrysler Motors sold at 71⅞, about 5 points from yesterday's low.

FARMERS DRIVEN FROM G. O. P. HALL

Kansas City, June 13 (AP)—The throng of farmers, protesting the nomination of Herbert Hoover and gathering numbers as it proceeded, stormed the Republican convention hall today and were prevented from carrying their cries to the delegates only by the threatening clubs of policemen.

Frustrated in their initial endeavor to storm the interior of the convention hall, the farmers, shouting, "We don't want Hoover," at the top of their voices, surged outside the hall in a disorderly and noisy fashion.

The throng was led to the very doors of the auditorium by Edgar D. Bush, formerly lieutenant-governor of Indiana and now the Republican candidate for that office.

The onrolling column of protesters swarmed right up to the front door of the auditorium and were halfway through the runway which borders the hall proper when several squads of policemen rushed up and by strenuous methods forced them back outside the door.

Having been repulsed in their first attempt, the farmers stood outside and shouted, "Once more the farmers get kicked out!" and "Anybody but Hoover!"

Evidences were that the police would be able to hold the crowd in check, although the volume of anti-Hoover people around the convention doors was gaining steadily and the leaders were still insistent upon getting inside the convention for a monster demonstration.

Today's demonstration was a

BORAH FORCES DRASTIC DRY PLANK ON PARTY

By KENNETH CLARK,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Kansas City, June 13—A plank calling for vigorous enforcement of the 18th amendment was incorporated in the 1928 Republican platform today by the resolutions subcommittee following an all-night session.

Further, the plank pledged the party's nominees to observance and enforcement of the amendment.

Not since the constitutional prohibition has been in effect has such a sweeping dry program been adopted by either of the major parties.

The plank was a victory for Sen. Borah of Idaho, who has threatened to carry a fight before the convention and the country if the party straddled on prohibition this year. Its approval by the entire committee, to which it must go before being sent to the convention floor, was anticipated.

The plank follows:

LAW ENFORCEMENT

"We reaffirm the American constitutional doctrine as announced by George Washington in his farewell address to wit:

" 'The Constitution which at any time exists until changed by the explicit and authentic act of the whole people is sacredly obligatory upon all.'

"We also reaffirm the attitude of the American people toward the federal Constitution as declared by Abraham Lincoln:

" 'We are by both duty and inclination bound to stick by the Constitution in all its letter and spirit from beginning to end. I am for the honest enforcement of the Constitution. Our safety, our liberty depends upon preserving the Constitution of the United States, as our forefathers made it, inviolate.'

"The people through the method provided by the Constitution have written the 18th amendment into the Constitution. The Republican party pledges itself and its nominees to the observance and vigorous enforcement of this provision of the Constitution."

Senator Borah reported there were onl two dissenting voices on the plank.

The farm relief plank proved to be a stumbling block at the sub-committee meeting.

The draft plank prepared by administration leaders proved to be unacceptable to a number of the members of the sub-committee, and it was indicated that a report to the entire committee might not be ready until late in the afternoon, with prospects that the platform would not go before the convention before tomorrow.

Chairman Smoot said he was prepared to hold the platform makers in session tonight if necessary to make a report to the convention tomorrow.

Little trouble was experienced in accepting the other planks in the platform. They were agreed upon substantially as written by Senator Smoot of Utah, chairman.

ANNOUNCED BY BORAH.

Announcement of the approval of the prohibition plank was made by Borah. Shortly after 3 o'clock this morning he emerged from the committee room with a sheaf of papers under his arms. His steps were weary, his eyes sunk, but a smile lighted his face.

"Here, boys," he told newspaper men who had camped outside the door all night, "here is the prohibition plank." He deposited it on a table and retreated hastily into the room again.

Bitter words were exchanged before Borah finally succeeded in obtaining a majority for his plank. Senator-elect William S. Vare of Pennsylvania, who proposed repeal of the 18th amendment, led the fight for the wets.

The scene within the committee room was reminiscent of conventions from time immemorial. The meeting was held in the Chamber of Commerce quarters in the Kansas City Athletic Club.

The fight over farm relief broke over the demands of the Illinois and Iowa representatives for a plank embracing the principles of the McNary-Haugen bill, endorsed by all the presidential candidates save Herbert Hoover.

FOR FARM COMPROMISE.

Hoover's forces favored a promise of tariff relief to farmers, and an extension of federal aid to assist co-operative marketing. The committee twice tried to break the deadlock, but did not succeed. It was agreed that some form of farm relief would be written into the platform before it is submitted to the convention.

A corruption plank sponsored by Borah pledged the party to give full publicity to campaign receipts and expenditures. It was designed to cover the election scandals of past years, and to serve as a warning against excessive campaign funds.

Every facility will be accorded congressional committees in running down election expenditures.

The foreign relations plank declared that American marines were in Nicaragua solely to protect American lives and property and to supervise next fall's elections there. The principle of outlawing war by treaty was indorsed.

Another plank urged development of inland waterways.

In agreeing upon the platform the committee first considered the proposals in the Smoot draft which drew little objection and left the controversial planks, such as prohibition and farm relief, to the end. The corruption and one or tw other planks, while approved in principle, were held up for minor changes in the phraseology.

WOMEN ARE NOT SAVERS, SAYS BANKER

It takes a home and babies—or some other responsibility—to make the average young woman of today thrifty, it was asserted by President Harry P. Gifford of the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks at the convention at the New Ocean House, Swampscott.

"Young business women do not make good savers," he told the 600 delegates, many of whom themselves were young business women. "They want money for pretty clothes and for good times.

"But just as soon as they have any responsibilities they begin to make good depositors."

The national president, who also is president of the Salem Five Cents Savings Bank, criticized school heads for neglecting in curricula the teaching of children in the matter of handling money.

"School savings have progressed splendidly with the co-operation of our member banks," he said, "but the ultimate goal should be a course of study of personal economics in every grade school. Marked progress has been made in Massachusetts during the last year, especially in Brookline, but it should be general.

"It is singular that children have not been taught the value of money in school when they are taught so many subjects less needful."

Today was the opening day of the three-day convention. Tomorrow's speakers at the business session will be J. H. Moore of New York, Dr. George M. Wiley, assistant commissioner of education of New York, and former Secretary of Commerce William C. Redfield.

REPRESENTATIVE JAMES CANDIDATE FOR SENATE

Rep. George F. James of Norwood, chairman of the legislative committee which investigated former Atty.-Gen. Arthur K. Reading's conduct in office, today announced his candidacy for State senator for the Norfolk and Middlesex districts. The post is now held by Senator Samuel Wragg of Needham.

CHOOSE WARNER FOR ATTORNEY GENERAL

Joseph E. Warner of Taunton, assistant attorney general and former speaker of the House, succeeds Arthur K. Reading, who quit under fire, as attorney general.

Warner was overwhelming nominated for the vacancy today by the Republicans of the House and Senate in a caucus which lasted for an hour and a half. The nomination is equivalent to election.

The victory of the Warner forces was all the more convincing when it was learned that the so-called leaders did their utmost to block action through motions to postpone and to bring about the appointment of a committee to bring in the name of a candidate outside the State House.

Here is the result of the poll:

|---|---|
| Joseph E. Warner | 92 |
| Rep. Henry L. Shattuck | 58 |
| Hugh Ogden | 3 |
| Former Atty.-Gen. Jay Benton | 3 |

The Warner nomination speech was made by Rep. John E. Beck of Chelsea. Much of the force of the Shattuck presentment was removed by Shattuck himself when he announced that he was not seeking the position.

The choice of the Legislature, which is to be formally ratified at a joint convention of the two branches later in the day, is not without elements of embarrassment to Governor Fuller.

Warner was defeated by Fuller for the Republican nomination for Lieutenant-Governor in 1920, leaving a bitterness of feeling which led later to action in the courts.

FALL RIVER MAYOR DRAWN FOR U. S. GRAND JUROR

W. Harry Monks, mayor of Fall River, will spend his summer chiefly in Boston, his name having been drawn today for the Federal Grand Jury which convenes June 26 for three months, off and on. This is believed to be the first time, at least in many years, that the mayor of a city has been drawn for a Federal Grand Jury.

of the Boston Athletic Association.

Others who have added their praise of the project are Mayor Edward W. Quinn of Cambridge, Lieut. Donald G. Duke, commander of the Boston airport, and the Rev. Roland D. Sawyer of Ware, a leading figure in the Massachusetts Legislature.

CONTRIBUTE NOW

The fund was started with a contribution of $5000 by the Hearst newspapers and will remain open for a limited time. The Boston Evening American hopes that the response will be so great as to impress other sections of the country. No contribution can be too large or too small. Every dollar will count. Harry Lyon and James Warner have accomplished much for America. Americans cannot do to much for them.

Following closely Governor Fuller's letter came that of Mayor Nichols:

It is a pleasure indeed to express my entire approval of the movement started by the Hearst newspapers to pay tribute to the two great American aviators of the Southern Cross.

Boston has taken a pre-eminent part in acclaiming the noted fliers who have been the guests of our great city and I am sure that the citizens of Boston will indeed be proud to adopt the suggestion presented by you as an earnest evidence of their admiration for this outstanding demonstration of skill, heroism and daring.

Permit me to send the enclosed in warm personal endorsement of your most praiseworthy appeal.

WIFE SAYS HER HUSBAND BEAT UP DEACON

An attack on 67-year-old Frederick O. Robinson, wealthy Cambridge man, by her husband, John W. Cowan, was described by Mrs. Ethel G. Cowan of Lee st., Cambridge, during trial of her divorce action in Middlesex Probate court today.

The attack, the witness said, followed an accusation by her husband that she had kissed Robinson, to which Mrs. Cowan replied she had not but was willing to as she saw nothing wrong in so doing.

All three figures are active workers in the Central Square Baptist Church of Cambridge, and for a time lived together in Robinson's house in Cottage st., Cambridge.

Last year Mrs. Cowan brought suit for separate support, charging cruelty, and obtained temporary custody of their three children, Dorothy, Alfred Robinson Cowan named for Robinson, and Donald Percy Cowan.

SAYS HE HIT DEACON.

In his answer to the separate support charge, Cowan said his wife had left him and that her affections had been alienated by Robinson. Later he started alienation of affections proceedings against the elderly Robinson.

In her divorce action Mrs. Cowan charges cruel and abusive treatment and seeks custody of the children.

The attack on Robinson, she testified, took place while they were making their home at his house, where Mrs. Cowan was housekeeper and her husband did the chores.

"I was sitting in the living room with Mr. Robinson," said Mrs. Cowan. "At bedtime my husband appeared from the cellar, looked in the glass doors and went upstairs to bed.

"I went up a little later and Mr. Robinson followed, going into the bathroom. When I entered our room my husband accused me of having kissed Mr. Robinson.

" 'I wasn't kissing him,' I told him, 'but I would just as soon kiss him. I see no harm' in kissing him. He is an old man, you know."

"Mr. Robinson then appeared in the doorway and I said, 'I will kiss him.' I started over to kiss him, but Mr. Robinson put up his two hands and said, 'Don't, there's trouble enough.'

"My husband then jumped out of bed and struck Mr. Robinson an awful blow on the head."

In May of 1919, Mrs. Cowan testified, she and her husband moved to Robinson's home on Cottage st., Cambridge, at his invitation. She explained that Robinson was treasurer of the Men's Bible class at the church and her husband, vice-president.

TROUBLE OVER FRIENDS.

"Mr. Robinson's wife died in 1918," the witness said, "and he suggested to my husband that we live with him as he was very lonely. At first I didn't want to as we had made our own home, but finally consented.

"It was arranged that I was to be the housekeeper, and my husband was to tend to the furnace and do the chores around the place. I was to get $20 a week for the table, electricity, gas and telephone, and we were to pay no rent.

Mrs. Cowan said that prior to three years ago difficulties with her husband were about money and domestic matters. Her husband seldom took her out, she said, although occasionally they went to church together.

Relating instances of her husband's alleged cruelty, Mrs. Cowan testified that in January of 1926, at the Robinson house, her husband struck her. During the last three years the witness said Cowan struck her three or four times a week.

Miss Italy Likes Beaux

New York, June 13 (AP)—Livia Marracci, the 'Miss Italy" of Galveston's pageant is sary that mama insists she must go home. She likes us. "In Italy girls are restrained till they are married. But here one can have many beaux."

SPITE VICTIM, SHE SAYS

EXPELLED FROM COLLEGE

Miss Bertha Ludwig of New York, testifying in her $25,000 suit against Wheaton College, admitted "minor" infraction of the rules, but said she was treated as if they were "major" infractions. (Story on Page 1, Second Section.)

Polar Bears Peril Lives of Nobile Rescue Fliers

Kings Bay, Spitzbergen, June 13 (AP)—An encounter with Polar bears marked the reconnaissance by Lieutenant Luetzow Holm who was isolated five days from his base ship while seeking the lost Italia.

When Lieut. Holm and his companion, Pilot Myre, were forced to land on Brandy Bay because of fog Polar bears made their appearance while the pilots were in their sleeping bags. The bears nosed all over the plane, sniffed at the pilots and then lumbered away without doing damage.

was supervised today by Capt. Oliver Le Boutillier, chief pilot, and Arthur Argles, co-pilot. Mechanic Andrew Surrini gave the Columbia a thorough examination and the only defect he discovered was a slight indentation on the edge of one propeller blade.

Miss Mabel Boll, who borrowed the Columbia from Charles Levine to make the flight, spent part of the day on a drive to Carbonear and other nearby towns, later visiting the air field. Tonight she and her companions will be guests of honor at a ball given by the Knights of Columbus in their clubrooms.

NOBILE'S STORY OF PERILS

The airship is lost. We have two injured men with us, their legs being broken.

We shall light fires and send up flares as soon as any airplane approaches. We have painted our only tent red.

We have food for fifty days at very reduced rations. But we are without boots, rifles, ammunition, folding boats, sledges, medical supplies, cooking stoves and tobacco.

Here the sky is generally cloudy but the visibility is good enough as long as the airplanes which seek us fly under the clouds which are no higher than about 1,500 feet.

Three of our crew are marching along the coast to Cape North. Our friends on the Citta Di Milano should take into account the fact that I expect we shall always be able to receive their messages, but within a few days we shall not be able to transmit messages, as our accumulators are rapidly losing power.

We urge you to send us three folding boats. We hear you nearly always distinctly but at night it is preferable to communicate with us by way of San Paolo.

There are six of us here. Of the others of the crew three are on march, and of the seven remaining, including our mechanic, the journalist, Hugo Lago, an Italian scientist, a Czecho-Slovakian scientist, and one fitter we know nothing as they were carried away by the airship which perhaps is lying about thirty kilometers further east.

Nobile's Own Story of How Airship Crashed

Rome, June 13 (AP)—Gen. Umberto Nobile's own story of the wrecking of the dirigible Italia in the Arctic ocean was received by the Stefani News Agency.

It was summarized as follows:

"At 10:30 a. m., at an altitude of 500 meters, suddenly the weight increased (apparently by snow and ice forming on the bag). The airship began a rapid plunge which it was impossible to halt, and in two minutes it crashed upon the polar ice pack.

"The cabin and part of the upper bracing were torn away while the bag was carried by the wind in an easterly direction.

"Among the debris on the ice all the occupants of the cabin were found miraculously to be alive. Scattered on the ice around them was almost all the material which formed the cabin.

"Only a minute after the plunge Nobile and his companions cried passionately: 'Viva Italia.'

"On the evening of May 30, about 13 kilometers northeast of Floyd Island, Capt. A. Mariano and Capt. Filippo Zappi and the Swedish scientist, Dr. Finn Malmgren, started with provisions for North Cape. They intended to cover 10 kilometers a day."

Hope for Nobile's Crew Grows as Blizzard Ends

(Copyright, 1928, by the Associated Press.)

Kings Bay, Spitsbergen, June 13 (AP)—Captain Riiser-Larsen and Lieut. Luetzow Holm, Norwegian fliers, were ready to start today on a determined attempt to bring help to the stranded crew of the Italia now in desperate straits on drifing pack ice.

The sealer Hobby, after battering its way through open leads, was in open water today and the Norwegian fliers were prepared to take off as soon as possible in an effort to find the Italia's radio party, of which Gen. Umberto Nobile is head, somewhere near Foyne Island, off the coast of North East Land.

Two favorable circumstance prevailed today. A blizzard, which had been sweeping the Archipelago, had spent itself, and despite a strong wind it was not as cold as yesterday. There was no snow, and the sun was shining.

The second favorable condition was that the Nobile party, now waiting almost three weeks for help, had drifted at least a mile and a quarter to the west, bringing them closer to their would-be rescuers and carrying them further from the danger of being swept out to the open sea beween the eastern tip of North East Land and Franz Josef Land.

The radio operator of the stranded crew, Giuseppi Biogi, told the operator of the Citta di Milano of the drift of the ice in a conversation last evening.

The icebreaker Braganza, which has been in northern waters with the Hobby for the past week, arrived back at Kings Bay this morning and immediately began taking on gasoline, provisions and dog teams for a quick run back to northern Spitzbergen.

In addition to the dog teams, the Braganza loaded on two sledges, supplies of rifles and 2000 rounds of ammunition so that seals and reindeer can be hunted both for its crew and the castaway men.

The Braganza will take search parties to North Cape, on North East Land, from where they can go east over Rips Bay, Dover Bay, then out to Rep Island and finally to Foyne Island, near which the Nobile men are. Such a trip should take about three days.

While searchers attempt to make their way to Foyne Island by land, Capt. Riiser-Larsen and Lieut. Holm will reconnoiter by air. Food, clothing and medicine will be dropped if the marooned men can be located.

SOCIETY ALL ENGROSSED IN BRIDAL PREPARATIONS

Entertainment at Dedham Polo and Country Club to Precede Theopold-Royce Wedding

VALIANT BRIDES OF JUNE! HECTICALLY they progress through a welter of pre-nuptial excitements; distractedly they rush from engagement to engagement; with rare fortitude they shop and endure the "trying" on for hours together. Every bride on the wedding eve is without fail the center of a large and merry final festivity before wedding bells peal. And with it all she arrives at the church door for the sacred, solemn service fresh-cheeked, starry-eyed and the calmest person in the entire throng. How does she do it?

MISS HARRIET ROYCE MOVES BLITHELY through the pre-wedding maze. Friday evening the Royces, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Page Royce, her parents, entertain at the Dedham Country and Polo Club for a large dinner dance in honor of their daughter and Mr. Theopold. Up to that moment Miss Royce is in the final throes of preparation. Thank you notes are to be written; out of town guests to be welcomed; last minute trousseau treasures to be collected. Final instructions and decisions given to caterers, chauffeurs and bride attendants. The endless details surrounding a wedding and reception, put on with pomp and stateliness, and bevies of fashionable guests, are uncountable.

ONLY INFORMAL ENTERTAINING, KEYED TO simplicity, goes on for Miss Ellen Frothingham and Mr. William Dunnell prior to their nuptials on next Friday. The ceremonial itself takes place in the Arlington Street Church, which lifts a slender spire where the maelstrom of city life and the green and restful reaches of the Gardens meet but never mingle. A reception at the Langdon Frothinghams' Beacon st. home runs not to numbers, being kept to the more closely intimate circles than most after-wedding functions.

MISS LORNA UNDERWOOD AND ANDREW GALBRAITH CAREY trip the light fantastic on the wedding eve at the Country Club, where Mr. and Mrs. Loring Underwood, parents of the bride, entertain in the final large fling before marriage vows are said. Friday noon (the ceremonial is at 4 in the afternoon) Mrs. Francis Davis of Belmont entertains the bridal party at luncheon. The Underwood-Galbraith wedding reception will be a lovely al fresco affair, provided, of course, skies do not weep rain and the unkind east wind bloweth not.

IT'S BUT A STEP OR TWO, ACTUALLY, FROM the Loring Underwoods' Belmont home to the pretty little stone church. Miss Lorna Underwood will stand before the same altar at which her elder sister, Miss Nina Underwood, became Mrs. David Hunter McAlpin some three years ago. The McAlpin-Underwood nuptials were charmingly al fresco in their more festal aspects. Guests supped beneath vividly-colored parasols set about the wide lawns. And danced a measure beneath gaily flaunting awnings. The same color will riot about the Underwood estate in Belmont for pretty Miss Lorna on Friday.

DRUSILLA PENN

Little girl spends play hours safely guarded in the Public Garden. She is the little daughter of the Ramon Penns and her home is just across from the Garden in Lime st.

(Photo by Nugent)

THE JOURNEY BETWEEN home and church will be a short one for Miss Helen Merriam, domiciled in Mount Vernon pl., within the shadow of the State House, and moving, through crowded city thoroughfares, next Saturday to King's Chapel's white austerity and calm, for the ceremonial. The Ralph Grays (Mrs. Gray is mater to the bride-elect) this winter have occupied the house at No. 7 Mount Vernon pl., formerly presided over by Miss Hope Gray. Miss Gray, by the by, is a Social Register "Dilatory Domiciler" this season.

THAT DESIGNATION IN THE Social Directory will not fit Miss Gray through June, however. She is much interested in the forthcoming reunion of women war workers, and so will be within hailing distance of headquarters at the Hotel Copley-Plaza all during the strenuous four or five days of June devoted to the business of convention and entertainment. Miss Gray did some valiant war service, has been president of the local unit of war workers, and has, I believe, served also in a national organization capacity.

THE HUGH BANCROFTS ARE enjoying long June days on their pleasant hillside at Cohasset, and the Beacon st. establishment is deserted until late autumn arrives on the calendar. The names of Mr. and Mrs. Bancroft are inscribed on a white card designating ownership of a box at the Races, as is quite in order, their interest in fine horseflesh being the keenest sort, that of owners and riders.

AUGUST 18 IS, I BELIEVE, the date on which the annual horse show for the Cohasset Legion Post goes on, at the ring where Bancroft horses are exercised under Miss Jessie Bancroft's, Miss Jane Bancroft's and young Mr. Hugh Bancroft's expert eyes. All the Bancrofts ride, they own some handsome specimens of equine blue bloods, and the show they sponsor and stage so thoroughly is rated topnotch along the South Shore. August 18 will be jotted down in many engagement books. The show is always an interesting spectacle, even to those who comprise the railbird contingent, onlookers, but not participants.

'PILGRIMS' PAY HOMAGE AT PLYMOUTH

By special trains—a modern method of travel—rather than by the slowly moving Mayflower, 1200 British "Pilgrims" visited historic Plymouth Rock today.

The gathering was the climax to the largest non-military pilgrimage ever to come to these shores. The special trains took the visitors from Boston, where for two days they had been visiting shrines of the American Revolution.

The visiting Britons went to Plymouth to see not only the landing place of the first Pilgrims, but to reconsecrate the pilgrimage to the ideals of the original Pilgrim fathers of 1620.

A five-foot laurel wreath was placed on Plymouth Rock from Old England by The Rev. Dr. Sidney M. Berry, secretary of the Congregational Union of England and Wales.

New Bedford, Fall River, Providence, R. I., and New York City will be visited by the "modern Pilgrims." From New York on Saturday they will sail back home.

LOWELL PLANS AIRPORT SHOW

Lieut. Albert Hegenberger, Pacific flier, together with government, state, military and naval officials, will be guests of honor on the opening day at a dedication dinner given by the city of Lowell to aviators.

M-G-M TO FILM HORN'S STORY

Los Angeles, June 13—Film rights to "Trader Horn," the grimly-romantic tale of a bearded pedlar's lifetime wanderings through Africa, have been purchased by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

The story of Horn's experiences, which was published serially in the Hearst papers recently, is being adapted for film purposes. Actual production is expected to start within the next three months.

The sum paid Horn for the film rights to his book was not disclosed. However, it was indicated that the figure was large. Purchase of the film rights was consummated at New York.

The book caused a sensation in literary circles upon publication. It was an autobiography of Aloysius Horn's experiences and life in Africa, where he went as a youth in quest of fortune.

HARRY THAW IS IN AN "IDEAL CITY" AT LAST

Vienna, June 13 (INS)—Harry K. Thaw, who has arrived here from Paris, said today that "Vienna is the ideal city." He added: "There are no meddlesome busybodies here and a man can enjoy himself without being troubled."

Thaw said he intended to see something of Vienna's light life before leaving, but merely to see if it had changed since he was here last.

Senator Moses in Line for Vice Presidency

By ELIAS A. McQUAID

KANSAS CITY, June 13—That the nomination for Vice-President may be New England's for the asking was one of the signs written high today as the Republican National convention entered upon its second day. The likeliest candidate of all who have been suggested by the East appears to be U. S. Senator George Higgins Moses, who is reported to have the backing of farm politicians prominent in the Lowden, Curtis and Watson headquarters. The first of the state delegations to declare for the Granite State Senator was Maine's, on motion of National Committeeman Simpson.

Early today his managers predicted the nomination of Hoover on the first ballot tomorrow with a total of 707 votes. A majority is 545. They place in the Hoover column all the New England votes except Connecticut's 17.

The error is a small one—a single vote—but it is quite unlikely that on the first ballot Hoover will receive all the 13 votes of "Little Rhody." One of the delegates-at-large from that State, Mrs. Leona Curtis Knight of Providence, is the daughter of United States Senator Charles Curtis of Kansas. Her vote will be cast for papa.

Acting for the delegation from President Coolidge's native state, Warner A. Austin of Burlington, Vt., will make one of the speeches tomorrow seconding the Hoover nomination. All that remained of the Coolidge "column" today—merely supposing the existence of such a column — were Mayor Thompson of Chicago and National Committeeman J. Henry Roraback of Connecticut. "I'm for Coolidge," says J. Henry, "and I'll remain for Coolidge."

For the next four years these New England States will be represented on the national committee as follows:

Maine—Joseph V. Simpson, York Harbor, and Mrs. Guy P. Gannett, Cape Elizabeth; New Hampshire—Albert H. Hyslop, Portsmouth, and Mrs. Nellie D. Parker; Vermont—Earle S. Kingsley, Rutland, and Mrs. George Orvis, Manchester; Rhode Island—Frederick S. Peck, Providence, and Mrs. Charles A. Steedman, Providence; Connecticut—J. Henry Roraback, Canaan, and Miss Katherine Byrne, Putnam.

The above are re-elections except in the case of New Hampshire, where Hyslop succeeds Fred W. Estabrook of Nashua and Mrs. Parker follows Mrs. J. G. M. Glessner of Littleton, and Connecticut, where Miss Byrne takes the place of Mrs. John B. Russ of Shelton.

SENATOR MOSES, who took charge today as permanent chairman, says the convention will come to an end not later than noon Friday, even if a night session must be held tomorrow.

In the hope that the platform might be ready at noon today Senator Reed Smoot's committee on resolutions sat through most of the night. Most of the time was occupied by such perplexing problems as prohibition enforcement and farm relief. President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia University, expecting a throw-down at the hands of the committee, is prepared to take the floor for a 25-word resolution reading as follows:

"We ask the immediate repeal of the eighteenth amendment to the Federal Constitution. While this amendment remains on the statute books, it should be obeyed."

THE resolutions committee, which had to listen to everybody who wants this convention to demand or denounce something or other in no uncertain words, is made up of one member from each state and one each from Alaska, Hawaii, the Philippine Islands, the District of Columbia and Porto Rico. New England is represented as follows: Maine—Frank W. Butler, Farmington; New Hampshire—Thomas P. Cheney, Laconia; Vermont—J. Rolfe Searles, St. Johnsbury; Massachusetts—Senator Gillett, Springfield; Rhode Island — Senator Metcalf, Providence; Connecticut — Senator Hiram Bingham, New Haven.

The platform as reported will contain a "compromise" farm plank, will denounce prohibition "nullification" and will "deplore" lavish expenditures in politics. President Butler of Columbia will carry his fight to the floor and we may see fireworks in the form of a repetition of the Symphony Hall debate between Butler and Borah.

Mrs. Frances Parkinson Keyes, wife of the "other" senator from New Hampshire and well known contributor to Good Housekeeping, lectured yesterday to clubwomen of Kansas City, Liberty and Independence, Mo.; Topeka, Olathe and Lawrence, Kas., on "Around the World in Verse."

AMONG the New Englanders whose names have been written in the visitors book at Hoover headquarters in the Hotel Baltimore are: Massachusetts—J. Rodney Ball, Lawrence; E. Leroy Sweetser, Everett; William Nidner, Malden; New Hampshire—William J. Carter, Portsmouth; Clarence M. Damon, Fitzwilliam; Eliot A. Carter, Nashua; Mrs. Isaac Hill, Concord; Mrs. Dana A. Emery, Manchester; Vermont—Hiram W. Foote, Middlebury. All except the last named are either delegates or alternates.

Women on Hand to Urge Planks for Platform

By EMILY NEWELL BLAIR

Vice-Chairwoman Democratic National Committee.

Written Especially for Universal Service. Copyright, 1928, by Universal Service, Inc.

Kansas City, June 13—In addition to the ladies in the Republican convention looking on, there are the ladies on the outside looking in.

I refer to the women here to present planks to the platform committees, a habit growing out of the custom of the suffrage associations and W. C. T. U. of coming to the conventions of any and all political parties and asking an endorsement of their causes.

The National League of Women Voters carried on the traditional method of political procedure when in 1920 a group of women made a journey to the Republican national convention in Chicago and the Democratic national convention in San Francisco to ask that planks approving certain measures believed to be of special interest to the new women voters be included in the platforms, measures dealing with education, women in industry, child labor, aid to maternity, and citizenship of women.

LED BY MISS SHERWIN

Again in 1924 a group smaller, but equally in earnest, from the same organizations appeared before the platform committee of both conventions, asking the parties to declare in favor of measures favored by them, chief among which was one favoring entrance of the United States into the World Court.

And now in Kansas City appear as their representatives a group of brilliant and able women, led by their president, Miss Belle Sherwin, to ask the Republican platform committee to adopt other planks.

They will probably appear before the platform committee, making clever, brief and pointed speeches. They have already, doubtless, seen all the men known to be slated for the platform committee.

HOVER AROUND COMMITTEE.

They will continue to see them in all their seeable moments and will be seen themselves hovering expectantly around the platform committee room door until the final vote of the entire committee is reported.

They will attend the convention and have an enormous luncheon for women at one of the hotels, at which many women will speak. But the interesting thing about them is that these women approachers—one cannot call them lobbyists at a convention—do not approach the women delegates, at least they don't seem to make a practice of it. They do not seem to count on women voters. They have not been known to back and work for a woman on the platfrm committee. So far as one may see, their tactics would be the same were the suffrage still confined to men. They cannot, then, one infers be acting as women as opposed to or in contrast with men.

"Skinny Women" Gain Weight

New YEAST and IRON adds new pounds in 3 weeks—or pay nothing

If you are skinny as a rail, with flat chest, gaunt limbs, and you seem to lack all energy, you need the good pounds of "stay-put" flesh and vitalizing strength that only Ironized Yeast can give. Thousands of rundown, weak men and women have regained their normal weight and vigor with Ironized Yeast.

Ironized Yeast is two tonics in one — weight-building Yeast and strengthening Iron. The yeast is the same used in making malt, and which makes malt so beneficial.

This yeast is treated with iron, the same as in fresh vegetables—spinach, lettuce and celery. In this form Iron is easily assimilated by the body, making rich, red blood and toning up nerves and muscles.

Only when Yeast is Ironized in this way is it more effective—for Iron is needed to bring out the weight-building values of Yeast. By this formula Ironized Yeast gives you results in half the time required by yeast and iron taken separately.

Start taking Ironized Yeast today and get pounds of weight and new strength. You will not only feel better, but you will look better, as Ironized Yeast clears out the old deadening poisons and brings new healthy color to your cheeks and sparkle to your eyes. Pleasant-tasting tablets in a handy bottle, safe for everybody. Do not upset stomach nor cause gas or bloating.

Go to your druggist today and get a single course treatment. If not absolutely satisfied with weight and health benefits gained, money refunded. If inconvenient to buy at the druggist, send $1.00 to Ironized Yeast Co., Atlanta, Ga., Desk 327-RF.

Smoot Tops Hoover in This Man's Estimation

Kansas City, June 13 (INS)—Herbert Hoover may be nominated for president, but Senator Smoot of Utah, chairman of the Republican Resolutions Committee, is "the best man in the world."

Take it from George S. Woodson of Des Moines, who appealed to the committee to favor a civil, rather than a military, governor for the Virgin Islands.

Smoot granted Woodson's request for 2½ minutes to speak.

Shouts of "Who are you?" greeted Woodson when he stepped to the rostrum.

"I'm good looking and black," he responded. His speech was practically drowned out in the ensuing roars of laughter.

FULLER AND EDWARDS ON "DARK HORSE" LIST

Kansas City, June 13—Two Massachusetts men are "dark horses" in the vice presidential race:

Gov. Fuller—Endorsed as a governor who has courage, executive ability and is "wise" to all the ways of wily politicians.

Gen. Clarence R. Edwards: Endorsed as a soldier candidate. A possible "dark horse" because of his geographical location and appeal to the World War veterans.

$50 FOR A SEAT TOP PRICE AT CONVENTION

Kansas City, Mo., June 13 (INS)—Spectators' seats to the Republican National Convention were being sold today at $50 each. These seats are good for the balance of the convention. A few sales of single session seats were reported at $20 each.

Fight for Seats Goes to Convention Floor

Kansas City, June 13 (INS)—Embittered factional rivals from Texas, Florida and Louisiana threatened today to precipitate a fight on the Floor of the Republican convention concerning the right to seats from these states.

The national committee threw out the anti-Hoover contestants from these states and the credentials committee of the convention sustained the action. The ousted delegations were all uninstructed, but known to be anti-Hoover. However, local and factional politics entered into the contests more than did the question of national candidacies in each instance.

The credentials committee report was scheduled for presentation to the convention proper at today's session. The defeated ones sat far into the morning preparing a minority report.

MRS. COOLIDGE GAINS; TRIP PLANS UNDECIDED

Washington, June 13 (AP)—Although Mrs. Coolidge's condition continued to improve, it was not considered probable at the White House that the presidential party would be able to leave Washington for Brule, Wis., today. White House physicians found Mrs. Coolidge's temperature was lower today than at any time since she suffered a recurrence of her illness Monday just before she and the President were to leave.

SLAYER PINS HOPE ON DOCTOR'S WICKEDNESS

Louisville, Ky., June 13 (AP)—Christopher Schott, physician, shot to death in his own sanitarium by a male nurse two months ago, had admitted that he had killed a girl and a man, the slayer, Dan Newman, testified in his trial for murder. Fear of exposure caused the physician to threaten him, Newman said, adding that the victim was a narcotic addict as well as a "drunkard." He pictured wild wild parties in which Dr. Schott brought "young girls to the sanitarium for improper purposes."

CONVENTION IS TOO TAME FOR McINTYRE

By O. O. McINTYRE

Kansas City, Mo., June 13—I was skittish about the opening of the convention, I feared the excitement might bring on one of my spells, I found it as thrilling as an hourglass demonstration. But I walked down the aisle behind Senator Borah, and when he wasn't looking touched his sleeve. That's something. I have come in contact with many big men in that way—that is, by touching them.

My seat was next to a beefy gentleman, with a covey of chins, who exuded a strong aroma of onions. I wanted to tell him about Marge Kennedy's line that onions may build you up physically, but they drag you down socially. I could see no reason why among 14,000 seats he had to pick one next to me. Still—and I thought this up right in my own head—politics make strange bed follows.

PALM GOES TO ALICE

At the entrance to the hall a polite usher asked me if I had a proscenium seat. The idea of such a personal question. I never met him before in my life. I'd look silly anyway at my age running around Kansas City with a proscenium seat.

About the loveliest looking lady I saw in the big hall was Alice Roosevelt Longworth, but there was many runners-up. Ziegfeld wouldn't do bad here, hunting material. Kansas City awakened this morning with weepy skies, but just about the time most of us regretted not bringing our rubbers the sun popped out and everything was perfectly dandy. Houston will have to go some to beat the weather here, so far.

The days have been like spring at Mentone, and the nights have the mild chill of Lucerne. (Oh, I've been around!) Blankets have been in demand every night. The informality of the West always impresses the stranger.

BREEZY COPS

A cornfed messenger boy has been calling at my hotel room every morning to do Sunday chores. This morning when he popped in he greeted me with: "How's the kid?"

There is a breeziness too about the crossing cops. Some of them wear khaki uniforms with Sam Browne belts and a six shooter strapped to their thighs. "Skip the gutter, bub," yelled one today, and he gazed down at my spats, smiling as though some of my underthings might have slipped from their moorings.

The visitor who is here for the first time with any notion that Kansas City is one of those overgrown towns has received a jolt. It is studded with skyscrapers, vibrant with progress, and has one of the finest boulevard and park systems in America. It has a residential development that incites a gasp among the most reluctant of gaspers. And if this doesn't touch the generosity of the Chamber of Commerce in a big way, nothing will.

COOLIDGE DESCRIBED

All the talk, as the blood-red sun makes its curtsy this evening, is Hoover and Coolidge, and I hope whoever is sticking those scurrilous Dodgers about Hoover under hotel room doors will be a better boy. That isn't nice, and is about as sporting as drowning kittens. It smacks of the Ku Klux, and if there are any in the audience I'm just kidding.

The best description I have heard of Coolidge is that he is "a close chewer and a tight spitter." If that isn't a complete biography in a phrase, see my solicitor.

Speaking of "chewing," when I was a square-toed country boy hereabouts it sticks in my memory, if any, that everybody chewed tobacco, but on this trip I haven't seen a single tobacco chewer. But maybe it is because long white whiskers have gone out of style.

G. O. P. SILENCE AMAZES MRS. McCORMICK

By RUTH HANNA McCORMICK

Copyright, 1928, Chicago Herald-Examiner. Distributed by King Feature Synd., Inc.

Kansas City, June 13—I confess to a deep sense of disappointment. The appalling lack of enthusiasm marks this as the most extraordinary Republican national convention within my memory.

What is it? What does it mean? Is it sullenness? Is it suppressed anger? Is it indifference?

There is no excitement comparable in intensity and exuberance even to a Wednesday evening prayer meeting.

The embattled farmers are not battling. The bands are not playing. The people are not cheering. It even is difficult to get up a first class debate at the luncheon table.

INDUSTRY IN POLITICS

Have we become industrialized in our politics, so to speak? Is everybody out of step but us?

That is to say, have our efficiency experts finally taken over the business of speeding up production in our National Convention—the greatest possible output in the shortest possible time?

But whatever it is, it is strange, unreal, uninteresting, depressing. So far as atmosphere goes, this is the dullest, flattest convention I have ever known.

There isn't any "mob psych 'ogy" here. That's because, for one reason, there isn't any "mob" here. It is like a great theater without an orchestra.

HAS WEST QUIT?

One thing stands out as a superb achievement. That is the efficiency with which the gentlemen who are running the show outlined and conducted the pre-convention campaign.

Even Pennsylvania—Pennsylvania of the Lancaster Pike and Valley Forge and the Liberty Bell—gives one a thrill on the efficiency score.

But where do we go from here?

The voice of the Middle West is inarticulate for the moment, but it cannot be that it has been lost in sheer amazement at the exhibition of efficiency that came out of the East.

Can it be that there is developing over the wide open spaces of the country a sort of spiritless surrender to the Industrial East?

For my part I cannot believe it.

Here's What G. O. P. Is Doing Today in Kansas City

Kansas City, June 13 (AP)—Program for the Republican convention today:

10:30 a. m. (central standard time)—Call to order by Senator Fess of Ohio, temporary chairman.

Prayer by the Rt. Rev. Thomas F. Lillis of the Roman Catholic Church.

Reports of committees on credentials and permanent organization.

Election of Senator Moses of New Hampshire as permanent chairman of convention.

Report of committee on rules and order of business.

Report of committee on resolutions, including the party platform.

There is a possibility that the convention may get started on the nominating speeches of presidential candidates.

'THIS IS A REAL CONVENTION!' SAYS FESS

By SIMEON D. FESS
U. S. Senator from Ohio

Kansas City, June 13—What was lacking nin noisy, milling, good houmored crowds in the past few days is now supplied in abundance.

State delegations have caucused and the convention started off with a precision which has marked the preliminaries.

It will be a real convention. There is only one thing lacking, according to veterans who have attended many former conventions. They point to the absence of a brand of leadership of Mat Quay, Mark Hanna and Boise Penrose.

The old-timers remark that these masters of finesse stopped the lead horses, kept the conventions on a high pitch of excitement and nervous uncertainty until the zero hour when they named their candidates.

In contrast these observers indicate that now the purposes contained in the claims and statements are at all times apparent.

LESS USE OF PATRONAGE.

The present-day leaders are not so adroit in subterfuge. The old politicians led through organization, patronage and promise of patronage. Many of their manoeuvres would be ineffective today. A new order prevails. There is more general interest and intelligence today. The leaders often have more trouble in leading now, but they have become more clever in reading the will of the people.

The old days of the battle of the giants may be passing, if not passed.

In many circles it is alleged that our primary reforms are eliminating not only party responsibility, but have lost the training grounds of the local political conventions in which were gathered the leading politically-minded elements of each community to instruct its representatives to the larger conventions, first district, then state, then national.

By this process the leadership was communicative from local to national with direct connection from lowest to highest. The enthusiasm began in the county gathering and increased with the ascent. By the time it had reached the national stage it had become national in its comprehensiveness.

NO OUTSTANDING FIGURE.

The same was observed in the leadership, reaching the climax in the one or more personalities whose altitude reaches down to the local precinct.

It is pertinent to ask whether our modern plan of primaries has not closed the way for the old-time enthusiasm which made national political conventions the powerful egencies of public political opinion once so prominent.

The want of a burning issue between contending parties will account for lack of enthusiasm in a convention and the indifference of the voters in an election.

An issue like slavery developed a line of leadership and party fealty rarely known in history. The Sixteen to One issue and the League of Nations issue were occasions for deep feeling and enthusiastic conventions as well as great leadership.

It is a common remark that we have great problems today, but not issues. Opinions on these problems divide not so much along party lines as sectional or industrial lines.

As an example, Republicans and Democrats are more divided among themselves on agricultural legislation than between themselves as parties.

WOMEN PLAY LEADING ROLES AT COLORFUL K. C. CONVENTION

BAY STATE SHARING IN ALL HONORS AT BIG MEETING

Kansas City, June 13 (AP)—The women Republicans of the country have so far played a creditable part in this quadrennial convention.

They looked pretty and lent their colorful summer attire to the convention hall picture on the opening day, and then betook themselves to the little rooms where the four committees on credentials, resolutions, rules and order of business and permanent organizations met in the afternoon.

Feminine noses never once became glossy as masculine coats were doffed in deference to the sultriness that blanketed Kansas City during the afternoon and evening of the first day.

Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, Assistant United States Attorney-General, was selected as permanent chairman of the important credentials committee, the only woman in the convention so far to hold the chairmanship of a committee.

She also holds the honor of being the first woman to address the convention from the platform.

WOMEN HERDED OUT.

Calmly Mrs. Willebrandt called the credentials group to order and with precision disposed of the roll-call and the calling of the first case. In a loud, clear voice, long used in prosecuting federal prohibition cases, she ordered the room cleared of all but members of the committee, the contestants, newspapermen. And forthwith the room was cleared.

Fellow women supporters of Hoover, who came to watch the most active member of their crew preside at what promised to be heated fights for more than 60 seats in the convention hall, were smiled upon sweetly by the chairwoman, but were unceremoniously herded from the crowded little room along with the rest of the unofficial spectators.

Of the other committees that met during the first afternoon, the rules and order of business committee boasted the largest representation of women, five women delegates being appointed to help conduct the business.

ARE ON COMMITTEES.

Mrs. Julia M. Emery of Connecticut; Mrs. Sara P. Anthoine, Maine; Mrs. Minnie R. Dwight, Massachusetts; Mrs. Marie Durey, North Dakota, and Mrs. Erick H. Johnson, Wisconsin, held up the feminine end of this committee.

The committee on permanent organization contained one woman, Mrs. M. J. Caples of Virginia. The important resolutions committee had no feminine representation.

Three women have been selected for the committee to tell the presidential candidate of his nomination, while seven women will be members of the committee to make the vice-presidential announcement.

Mrs. Henry J. Sharpe, Rhode Island; Mrs. L. S. Gates, Utah, and Mrs. Hugh Eldridge, Washington, have been named on the presidential committee. Elizabeth C. Vergn, New Jersey; Mrs. Miriam A. Schindler, New York; Mrs. Barbara R. Parkinson, North Dakota; Mrs. Hugh Clark, Ohio; Mrs. Thomas G. Hatheway, Washington; Mrs. John A. Thornley, Utah, and Mrs. H. W. Clouchek, Idaho, complete the vice-presidential notification committee.

Though no woman sat in judgment on the resolutions committee, several appeared before it seeking to have their pet planks inserted in the platform.

PLEAD FOR FARMERS.

Mrs. Jane Norman Smith, chairman of the National Council, and Mrs. Frances Roberts of the Industrial Council of the National Women's party both spoke in favor of a woman's equal rights constitutional amendment plank.

Mrs. James W. Morrison, Chicago, spoke for the five-point plank sponsored by the League of Women Voters, and Mrs. Frederick Bagley of Boston represented the National Education Association in its effort to have the party adopt a plank creating a department of education.

The feminine farm element was represented when six farmers' wives joined their husbands in the demonstration of several hundred growers.

Under the Spotlight at Big Convention

(By the Associated Press)

Kansas City, June 13—A five-day journey from Panama to Kansas City was none too long for Mrs. Christine Bradley South to come to vote for Hoover. Mrs. South, daughter of a former Governor of Connecticut, and wife of the American minister to Panama, is one of the Kentucky quartet of women delegates and will second the Hoover nomination.

If conventions were run by seniority, Fred N. Dow of Portland, Me., not only would head his State delegation but all the cohorts of the opposing generalissimos in Kansas City. He attended his first Republican convention 48 years ago.

Prominent Democratic women who are learning the ropes here, presumably in order to put on a bigger and better show in Houston, include Mrs. Emily Newell Blair, president of the Women's National Democratic Club; Mrs. Alvin Dodd, daughter of A. Lincoln Filene of Boston, and Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, national committee woman from the District of Columbia, all three prominent in Washington Democratic circles.

Unlike the gavels of the past, that used by Chairman Butler in bringing the convention to order struck with a subdued "oomp" instead of a sharp "bang."

Will Durant, covering the convention for a news syndicate, appeared in the press box at the opening, felt the warmth and was the first of the writers to remove his coat. Sleeve "garters" were an item of his toggery.

The "snood," beloved of the ladies of another generation to hold their heavy twists of hair at the napes of their necks, appeared here again yesterday when Mrs. James W. Morrison of Chicago testified at the hearing of the resolutions committee.

Mrs. Morrison's beautiful white hair is held low at the back of her neck in a heavy net. It is said she has nets of different colors to harmonize with her various gowns, and a pearl-studded one for gala occasions.

SANDWICH MAN THRILLS G. O. P.

By ROLAND KREBS
International News Correspondent

Kansas City, June 13—On 12th st. is a little 2x4 hamburger sandwich shop. In the window is an uninteresting sort of a cuss doing stupid things with dull onions and cutting colorless capers with impossible hamburgers.

He fumbles about for a minute or so, and then, with no great talent or originality to speak of, finishes what a charitable world calls a hamburger sandwich.

Until today that fellow was to his wife and everybody else just another chump making sandwiches. Now he's a big man. He probably wonders whether or not he'd screen well and dreams of going into pictures. He's one of the biggest shows in Kansas City. And, he knows that one of the littlest shows in Kansas City is the Republican national convention.

If you don't believe it, count the number of pop-eyed, interested and amazed delegates flocked about his window, watching every move he makes—and then watch them yawn and try to stay awake in Convention Hall.

The convention, stumbling along rapidly, is a trial to its delegates, waiting patiently to send Hoover in and go home. The whole thing is so dull to them that they find the anaesthetic antics of the Hamburger Impressario as hair raising and exhilerating a spectacle as the circuses of Nero were to the Romans, who weren't civilized enough to have conventions.

There are none of these post-midnight conferences that made past conventions in Chicago famous.

What is there to confer about? When a delegate awakens here after a good night's sleep of eight or ten hours, it's a toss-up with him whether to sit about his hotel lobby and doze or stroll down Twelfth st. to see the hamburger sandwich man starting Act III, which is the same as Acts I and II.

They say this convention can't be stampeded for Coolidge now any more. Maybe not, but a first-class, growly, rough-and-tumble dog fight outside Convention hall probably could start a stampede of delegates anxious for excitement that would empty the auditorium.

Asserts Farmers Threaten to Vote For Al Smith

Kansas City, June 13 (INS)—"If they nominate Hoover, we'll lick him with Al Smith."

With this public declaration by William H. Settle, president of the Indiana Farm Bureau, ringing in their ears, 75 to 80 of New York's 90 delegates to the Republican National Convention today were preparing to jump on the Hoover band wagon.

Apparently angered by some hissing, Settle shouted, "We'll not only beat Hoover with Al Smith, but we'll send Democrats to Congress."

In Butler's Job

NEW COMMITTEEMAN
Louis K. Liggett of Boston and Brookline, long prominent in Republican politics, who was chosen today national committeeman from Massachusetts to succeed William M. Butler.

WHO SAID THAT HOOVER WASN'T A POLITICIAN?

Kansas City, June 13 (INS)—The Republican Party, in convention assembled, is looking for the political lightning rod man who sold some of the boys that deathless slogan:

"Hoover is all right, but he's no politician."

Pondering the list of 707 first-ballot Hoover delegates claimed today by James W. Good, the Hoover generalissimo, the convention is about ready to concede if the Secretary of Commerce is not a politician, he at least has entree to political circles.

Hoover's activities put a new word into the language a decade ago, when heatless days, meatless days and wheatless days made it a high service of patriotism to "Hooverize." Today, the political lexicographers are searching for a new word to symbolize the history-making formula which has placed Herbert Hoover at the head of a new industry in the Republican Party.

Hoover's men have introduced some new plays in this ancient and honorable game of President-making, and there are a great many people who are still looking for the ball.

The elder statesmen of the party are already agreed on this—that, whatever may be the ultimate explanation, never before in American history has such a perfectly organized, militant, enthusiastic and responsive organization swept into a convention city as came here to sell Hoover to the unemotional G. O. P.

Hoover has this nomination without having made a campaign speech. He has it almost without having left his desk in the Commerce Department for a campaign trip. He has written but two public utterances—one authorizing use of his name in Ohio, the other answering Borah on prohibition. His testimony before the Senate committee was that less than $400,000 has been spent.

Hoover Backers Scoff at Farm Revolt Threat

Kansas City, June 13 (INS)—Hoover campaign managers have no fear of a farm bolt at the polls in November.

Completely ignoring the riotous protests of farmers parading the streets and holding countless protest meetings, the Hoover generals attacked the farm organization leaders as professional agitators.

At the same time some regular Republicans who deserted the administration to fight for the McNary-Haugen bill were trying to quench the fires of revolt which they helped to ignite.

"It was expected that this movement would fail," said James W. Good, Hoover generalissimo. "It did not originate with farmers but with those who would farm the farmers for political purposes. It never had the sympathy of real farmers."

"As far as Indiana is concerned we are all for the ticket—we are Republicans," said Arthur Robinson of Indiana, a leader in the fight for the McNary-Haugen bill.

From the Northwest came another prediction that there would be no bolt—this from Governor A. G. Sorlie of North Dakota, who led a farm caravan here.

F. W. Murphy of Wheaton, Minn., chairman of the American Council of Agriculture; William Hirth of Columbia, Mo., chairman of the corn belt committee, and William H. Settle, chairman of the Indiana Farm Bureau, continued bitter attacks on Hoover.

Hoover's Aid Is Back With Personal Report

Washington, June 13 (AP)—Secretary Hoover got his first complete and personal report on the Kansas City situation today when George E. Akerson, his private secretary, returned from the convention scene. He was taken straight to the Secretary's private office from his train, and with George Barr went into an informal staff meeting for intimate discussion of the two or three decisions immediately awaiting the Secretary's word.

The Secretary and the little group of his aides talked over the situation at length. It was known that his leaders at Kansas City had told him that his opinion would be gladly accepted by the convention majority on every disputed point.

BIG FIELD NOW OUT FOR VICE-PRESIDENT

Kansas City, June 13 (AP)—Vice-presidential booms have popped up at the Republican Convention like mushrooms after a rain since Herbert Hoover accentuated his apparently winning lead in the presidential race and leaders were busy today looking over the crop.

In the center of the field and standing a little higher than the host of other candidacies was that of Vice-President Dawes, with Secretary Mellon and Sen. Borah giving impetus to a boom already under way with public declarations for the incumbent.

Here is a partial list of the candidates in the field, either by their consent or by activity of friends:

Curtis, Kansas.
Watson, Indiana.
Moses, New Hampshire.
Fess, Ohio.
Nye, North Dakota.
Edge, New Jersey.
Deneen, Illinois.
Tilson, Connecticutt.
Fish, New York.
Everett Sanders, Secretary to President Coolidge.
Hanford MacNider, Iowa.
Sam R. McKelvie, former Gov. of Nebraska.
John J. Pershing.
Governor Fisher, Pennsylvania.
Governor Fuller, Massachusetts.
Henry J. Allen former governor of Kansas.
Governor Baker, Missouri.
Henry W. Anderson, Virginia.
William J. Donovan of New York, assistant to the attorney-general.
Theodore Roosevelt, Jr.
John MacKenzie of Illinois.
Louis Emmerson, candidate for governor of Illinois

But no list could be complete. During the night every hour seemed to bring forth a new candidate.

In addition to the various state delegations putting forth candidates there were several organizations announcing their choices.

Vice-presidential selections usually receive but little consideration from the convention, with the choice always hanging on the nomination of the head of the ticket, but the early lead for Hoover turned convention discussion to this field and by today there was a high tide of booms.

VERMONT WILL BACK MOSES

Kansas City, June 13 (AP)—Chairman Frank E. Langley of the Vermont delegation to the Republican convention announced today the delegation would give its unanimous support to Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire on the first ballot for the vice-presidential nomination.

New Hampshire and Maine will give their entire vote to Moses, and he will receive some support also from members of the Rhode Island delegation.

Langley indicated that after the first ballot for Moses some of the Vermont delegates might swing to a service men's candidate. Col. H. Nelson Jackson of Burlington, prominent in World War veterans' affairs, is here with the Vermont delegates to seek their support of a former service man for second place on the ticket.

LOWDEN BLEST BY STARS, SAYS ASTROLOGER

Here is the fourth horoscope of a presidential-possibility, by Catherine Victoria Thompson of 199 Audubon rd., Fenway, noted astrologer. She has made many successful prophecies, among them that the liner Titanic would sink.

By CATHERINE V. THOMPSON

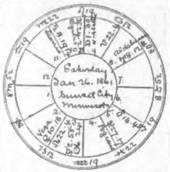
Former Governor Frank Orren Lowden of Illinois, born Saturday, January 26, 1861, at Sunset City, Minn.

In looking at this horoscope, we have to say that this age will preclude any possibility of success.

Lowden was born with the great Jupiter in conjunction with Regulus, a famous fixed star of the first magnitude that has the power of taking persons of obscure birth and raising them to great prominence.



We do not know his birth hour but we have placed these two stars in midheaven, and we find Saturn, the planet of old age, there also, but Saturn afflicts Herschel and so, every seven years, this gentleman has met with disappointments.

He married at the age of 35 just when Jupiter had completed his third round and probably all Lowden's honors have come after a long wait.

He has the Sun in Aquarius, Lindbergh's sign, and this gives a man wonderful possibilities once he is able to understand himself and can concentrate his efforts. It makes him noble, honest, kind-hearted, endowed with natural discrimination and not easily deceived, and he should often seek advice but rarely take that given.

While Lowden may not know it, he has the power to control insane persons by looking kindly at them. But he lacks concentration, a quality that Col. Lindbergh is powerful in possessing, and it has been the great secret of his success when a man acquires that faculty.

He is also blessed with some remarkable fixed stars which have shaped his career and made him what he is.

MRS. COOLIDGE GAINS; OFF FOR WISCONSIN TONIGHT

Washington, June 13 (AP)—Following a second consultation this morning between Col. James F. Coupal and Lieut.-Comdr. Joel T. Boone, White House physicians, the condition of Mrs. Coolidge was considered sufficiently improved to allow the departure tonight of President and Mrs. Coolidge for the summer White House in Wisconsin.

Improvement in Mrs. Coolidge's condition had continued during the morning to a point which, in the opinion of the physicians, removed any danger in the journey.

Portage, Wis., June 13 (AP)—Miss Zona Gale, 53-year-old author of "Lulu Bett," the 1920 Pulitzer prize play, and many books and short stories, was married quietly to a friend of her childhood, William Breese, 53, Portage manufacturer. Only members of their immediate families witnessed the ceremony, which was performed at the home of the bride's father, Charles Gale.

Reed Says Hoover Owes Nomination to Vare

Kansas City, June 13 (INS)—The nomination of Herbert Hoover by the Republicans means the American people must look to the Democratic party for "honest government and patriotic Americanism," Senator James A. Reed, Democrat, of Missouri, declared today in an interview assailing the Secretary of Commerce.

Reed gave Senator-elect William S. Vare of Pennsylvania, whom the Senate barred at the door, full credit for the pending nomination of Hoover. He asked whether the Republican voters of the nation would "follow the corrupt banner of Vare, upon which is emblazoned the Cross of St. George."

"How the mighty have fallen," Reed exclaimed, when told that Hoover's nomination was assured. "Conceive the spectacle of the party of Abraham Lincoln groveling at the feet of William S. Vare. Conceive the even more remarkable spectacle of the boss of Pennsylvania forcing down the reluctant gullet of Republican leaders the man who spent the first 23 years of his adult life as a resident of England, as the organizer of British syndicates.

"Think of the party of Lincoln and Roosevelt accepting a man who maintained his permanent habitation in London, who never during that 23 years cast a vote in an American election, who in England declared himself to be a Liberal, who returned to this country to beat down the prices of farm products for the benefit of his British associates, who immediately began booming himself for President and who was so doubtful of his political affiliations that he started as a Democrat and ran in seven states as a Democrat but who trimmed his sails with the veering winds and steered his craft into Republican waters to accommodate himself to changing political weather.

"The nomination of Herbert Hoover is a direct slap at the interests of the whole Mississippi Valley and the entire West. His nomination was accomplished by organized propaganda and a machine well greased with funds collected from doubtful sources. The expenditure of those moneys enabled him to secure a majority of delegates in states where not infrequently only one in 100 citizens went to the polls.

"The sound and progressive Republicans of the West and the believers in constitutional government throughout the country must now look to the Democratic party as the sole hope of honest government and patriotic Americanism."

TILSON POINTS TO FITNESS OF HOOVER

By REP. JOHN Q. TILSON,
Republican Leader of the House of Representatives. Written for International News Service.

Kansas City, June 13—With the first session of the convention over, it is now clear Herbert Hoover will be the Republican nominee and that the ship of state will have at its helm for the next four years a man who can be trusted to hold steadfast to the course of Calvin Coolidge.

Naturally there is some disappointment among friends of unsuccessful candidates, but I feel confident that before the presidential campaign is finished the people will have come to such a realization of Mr. Hoover's ability and sincerity that he will be elected by a majority rivalling that of 1924.

Hoover is one of the greatest administrators and executives the world has ever known. I think his selection for President will be of particular importance to farmers. They have been struggling for years with a great problem, the solution of which, in my opinion, can be found only in improved marketing and distribution.

'30,000,000 FARMERS WON'T VOTE FOR HOOVER,' PARADERS SHRIEK

DEMONSTRATION HALTED BY SQUADS OF POLICE

equel to a night demonstration in vhich marchers in the streets houted "Thirty million farmers will ot vote for Hoover."

The demonstration was partici nted in by upwards of 800 men, ost of whom looked like they had e right off the farms of the dle West. They let their protest shouts ring through the streets, vention headquarters and even ain several Hoover mass meet.

t was broken up by clever orts of Representative Wyant, a over worker from Pennsylvania, d a corps of Hoover lieutenants ho rushed to the scene.

The demonstration received its mpetus at a farmers' meeting addressed by leaders advocating a plank in the party platform favoring farm relief among the lines of the vetoed McNary-Haugen bill.

Lining themselves up two by two, the throng paraded noisily through convention center streets and at one time halted in Ararat Temple in the midst of a great Hoover mass meeting.

SING NATIONAL ANTHEM.

The Hoover leaders, seeking to stop the continuous shouts of "We don't want Hoover," "anybody but Hoover," and "thirty million farmers won't vote for Hoover," ordered the band to strike up with the "Star Spangled Banner." Momentarily disconcerted, the shouts were suddenly broken off, but the farmers soon regained their presence of mind and joined in the singing.

Fired by the commands of two or three self-appointed leaders, the throng jostled its way toward the Baltimore Hotel, where Representative Wyant intervened.

Wyant called on the farmers to "think of the Republican party."

"I am a real dirt farmer," he shouted over the cat-calls and heckling that at first greeted him. "I voted for the McNary-Haugen bill, but I want to tell you this demonstration isn't going to do anybody any good.

"Remember the Republican party and all the prosperity it has always brought to the country, and remember also that you will get a great deal more from Herbert Hoover than you will from Al Smith."

At first the farmers refused to listen, but soon afterward, with other Hoover workers rushing into the melee, the protestors were divided ino groups and personal argument took the place of the more impressive mass demonstration.

During the parade, workers for Senator Curtis got in some telling licks. The farmers had marched into Curtis headquarters and demanded a speech from the Kansan.

Climbing on top of a table, Al F. Williams, United States attorney for Kansas, made a rousing speech in behalf of the Curtis candidacy, explaining at the outset that the Senator would have addressed them personally except for the fact that he "is right this minute in conference devising means of stopping Hoover."

As Williams spoke he was interrupted by shouts of "Anybody but Hoover," and when he had finished the crowd chanted for several minutes, "We don't choose to vote for Hoover."

"Remember that the balloting has not yet begun," Williams told the group. "Remember this convention is not going to be led by false doctrines.

"Curtis is the highest type of citizen this country has, and I am telling you now that despite the fact that Hoover seems to have a majority now, we will win this fight yet, if you men will continue to demonstrate in the fine fashion you have tonight until balloting actually gets under way, we will defeat Hoover after all and put a real American in as our nominee."

as ours is, there will from time to time arise differences of opinion. This is by no means the first occasion when Republicans have found themselves at odds regarding a question of cardinal consequence as affecting party policy.

SEES PEACE AHEAD.

"Heretofore we have succeeded always in settling our difficulties within our own ranks through that wise spirit of accommodation which must characterize a great and far flung organization like ours, upon which depends so much for the advance and prosperity of our country. So it will be now.

"No one can doubt the essential sympathy with which the Republican party has always looked upon the great and diverse interests which make up the fabric of our national existence. This sympathetic viewpoint has not changed.

"Agriculture and industry and the social order continue to be the prime objects of our solicitude, and in dealing with them the Republican party will not shirk its responsibility.

"We shall, however, now as always, chart our course within the limits of the Constitution and within the operation of sound economic law.

"Half a century ago the Republican party stood firm against inflation through an unlimited issue of paper money—and the people stood with us then.

"A generation ago the Republican party stood firm against a debasement of our currency through the free coinage of silver—and the people stood with us then.

PLENTY OF "TIMBER."

"Less than 10 years ago the Republican party stood firm against the surrender of our national sovereignty through minority membership in a foreign superstate—and the people then stood with us twice by a majority of more than seven millions.

"So we shall stand firm again here and now—and in November the American people will again crown our courage and reward our sincerity in a victory as splendidly triumphant as any which we have ever achieved.

"Upon the platform which we shall thus reconstruct, we shall place a candidate whose personality fits our principles and the nation's present necessities. We are not barren of presidential timber. However our choice may fall, we know it will not rest in unworthy hands and that the leadership we shall here set up will assure to the country a Republican ascendency which will endure for at least eight years more.

"There are at least 5,000,000 reasons why this must be so—because there are at least 5,000,000 more Republicans than there are Democrats in this country.

"These millions united, as we know they will be when this convention has concluded its task, and joined by millions more to whom our candidates and our principles will appeal, will sweep on to an overwhelming victory at the polls.

HITS AT LEAGUE

"There is no occasion for the people to distrust our party and there is no occasion for our party to distrust the people. Their sober judgment will rest with us because—

"In seeking for a foreign policy for the United States we know our people will not turn to the party which conceived and nurtured the League of Nations;

"In seeking for a fiscal policy for the United States, we know our people will not turn to the party which advocated rag money and free silver;

"In seeking for an economic policy in the United States, we know our people will not turn to the party which clings to the fetich of free trade;

"In seeking for an agency to safeguard the rights of American citizens and American property on foreign soil, we know our people will not turn to the party which advocates a policy of scuttle.

"In seeking for an instrument to carry forward the still uncompleted recognition of the present day defenders of the flag, we know our people will not turn to the party which for 60 years has resisted, with unequalled venom, every measure to show gratitude to those defenders of the Union who made possible our contribution to the World War.

CITES HUGE GRAFT.

"In seeking for means to administer the great trust of government for the United States we know our people will not turn to the party which has constantly shown itself ready to barter principles for votes.

"In seeking for a policy to make the tariff effective for every interest in the United States, we kno wour people will not turn to the party whose strength and weakness alike lie in its sectional character;

"In seeking for a policy to assure honest administration of the government of the United States, we know our people will not turn to the party whose most recent and most outstanding achievement in this year of grace is the revealed grafting of $20,000,000 from a single city;

"In seeking for a policy of law enforcement in the United States, we know our people will not turn to the party which maintains itself in the places of its power through nullification of two amendments to the Constitution and which openly flouts a third;

"BRING ON YOUR SMITH!"

"In seeking for a policy to assure honest elections everywhere in the United States, we know our people will not turn to the party whose sole title to success has rested upon intimidation and the tissue ballot and which now rests upon the obliterated vote of four million American freemen;

"And in seeking for an agency to carry forward the program of the social order in the United States, we know our people do not intend to throw our country within the tender embrace of Tammany Hall.

"We enter this campaign in no posture of defense. We come upon the field agressively militant. We intend to carry this fight to the enemy, and we challenge them to bring forth their strongest champion. Whether he emerge from another spectacle like the 103-round battle of the Madison Bear Garden or whether he come from an overpowered convention held spellbound by the glare of Tammany Tiger, we are ready for him. Bring him on and we will bury him. We welcome him with hospitable hands to a bloody grave.

"And we care not whether his name be Brown, Jones, Robinson or Smith."

Bay State to Fire First Shot in Hoover Campaign

Kansas City, June 13—With the nomination of Herbert C. Hoover on the first ballot now looked upon as a certainty, a movement is under way for firing the first gun in his election campaign in Massachusetts, President Coolidge's home State, for Hoover is committed to carry out the policies that have characterized the Coolidge administration.

James W. Good of Iowa, national campaign manager for the Secretary of Commerce, tentatively has agreed to go to Massachusetts, with another speaker of national prominence in the Hoover movement, to open the election campaign on the night of June 29, although the official notification of Hoover's nomination probably will not be made until a few weeks later.

The occasion will be a banquet by the Republican Club of Massachusetts, on the night before the unofficial conference in Boston, on June 30, to be managed by the Republican state committee, for the purpose of considering what available candidate is best qualified for the United States senator nomination to oppose Senator David I Walsh.

The plan is to have the banquet in the Statler Hotel, and to make the occasion a hearty sendoff for the presidential nominee. Prominent Republicans from all parts of the Bay State will be present.

MRS. THAYER IS ELECTED

tion had been adopted by a vote of 20 to 19 the action was rescinded and the delegates, by written ballots, then cast the votes that elected Mrs. Thayer.

While the meeting was in progress alternates and other members of the Massachusetts party interested in the battle but not entitled to vote, thronged the corridors outside of the meeting room, waiting impatiently for the doors to open in order to learn the outcome.

There was no contest for national committeeman from Massachusetts to succeed former Senator William M. Butler, and Louis K. Liggett of Boston and Chestnut Hill was unanimously elected.

John Richardson, Boston lawyer, who managed the campaign of Herbert Hoover in Massachusetts, had been proposed as a candidate, but he did nothing to encourage support.

After the election of Mrs. Thayer by ballot the choice was made unanimous upon motion of Mrs. Minnie R. Dwight of Holyoke, representing Mrs. Batchelder, who was not present.

CREDENTIALS BATTLE HOLDS UP G. O. P. CONVENTION

Kansas City, June 13 (INS)—The second session of the Republican National convention was called to order today at 10:37 a. m. (12:37 p. m. Boston time), by Senator Fess, temporary chairman.

Bishop Thomas F. Lillis of the Roman Catholic Church pronounced the invocation. It was one of the longest ever heard in a national convention, read from typewritten pages, and at the end the convention repeated the Lord's prayer with the gray-haired cleric.

Roosevelt admirers were placated by Chairman Fess "apologizing" to the convention for his accidental omission from his keynote speech of the name of Theodore Roosevelt.

TRIBUTE TO "T. R."

Fess explained that the prepared copy of his address bore a tribute to "T. R.," but that in the confusion and lights and heat he neglected to read it. He compensated by paying a laudatory tribute and the convention stood and cheered.

The chairman then called for the report of the committee on credentials, but as it wasn't ready he put the band to work. First came The Star Spangled Banner, then the Stars and Stripes Forever, Sousa's great march.

The farmers sent a committee composed of Edgar D. Bush of Salem, Ind.; Senator Gerald Nye of North Dakota and State Senator Luke Duffey of Indianapolis to treat with convention officers.

Senator Moses and convention officers flatly turned down a request of the farmers for permission to march through the hall.

FUNERAL MARCH.

The farmers then began a slow march outside the hall with the band playing a funeral dirge and the marchers' heads bared.

During the wait for the credentials committee the outlook became gloomy for a windup of the convention by tomorrow night. Word came from the resolutions committee that "there was very little chance of completing its work before tomorrow."

Finally Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt, chairman on credentials, rushed into the hall. She had held up the convention for more than an hour.

She told the delegates the committee had been up most of the night wrestling with the contests.

HOOVERITES WIN.

Her report went into detail concerning the factional disputes of the various contests, first taking up Florida. The credentials committee, she said, unanimously recommended the seating of the so-called O'Neal delegates from Florida, who are for Hoover. George W. Bean, for many years national committeeman from Florida, headed an opposing delegation of uninstructed but anti-Hoover delegates. Bean lost out before the national committee and also before the credentials committee.

Of all the contests heard by the national committee, and later by the credentials committee, there was a minority report on only the 22d district delegates from Texas. The Littleton - Wurzbach delegates-at-large from Texas accepted their defeat. But decided to fight for the district deelgates.

The dissenting Texans found 15 members of the credentials committee to agree with them as against 24 supporting the majority report.

Then came another shift in the wind and the red column climbed back in the glass during the next hour until it hit 81 at 3 p. m.

New England may have showers, however, the forecast being:

Partly cloudy tonight and Thursday, probably with showers Thursday; not much change in temperature; moderate east to south winds.

SUNDAY SPORT DISCUSSED

A discussion of the Sunday sports bill was a feature of the annual meeting of the Harriet A. Baldwin Home and School Association at Brighton. The Rev. Frederick E. Heath, member of the board of directors of the Lord's Day League, made a strong appeal to the gathering to oppose the bill in order that Sunday may be maintained as a day of rest and prayer.

Mr. Heath pleaded for a Sunday that would influence the younger people to think of spiritual things, for, as Mr. Heath quoted from a speech of President Coolidge, it is the spiritual things that will safeguard the nation.

Myles T. McSweeney, assistant sports editor of the Boston Evening American, presented the arguments of those in favor of the bill.

Mr. McSweeney said the bill should be decided on its merits, and strongly declared Sunday professional sports is neither immoral, contrary to public welfare or against any command of God or religion.

POWER TRUST TO CONTINUE PROPAGANDA

Washington, June 13 (INS)—The power lobby yesterday defied protests from Federal Trade Commission, officials, the National Education Association and other quarters and proclaimed it will continue circulating propaganda among school children througnout the country.

Its many-sided propaganda, whose school phase was denounced by the educational association as "a crime against youth," will be expanded "as much as possible."

This defiance climaxed a spectacular hearing before the trade commission in its investigation of the so-called power trust. Methods of conducting the investigation were attacked and stoutly defended, after reams of documentary evidence from Texts had revealed the most intricate network of power propaganda yet brought to light.

Its directing head was W. C. Grant, who told on the stand how he corralled newspaper space by the hundreds of columns and poured "educational" matter into the state's schools while working as a "relief editor" for the Associated Press.

The dramatic climax came when Robert E. Healy, commission chief counsel, asked Grant point blank if the National Electric Light Association and related state organizations would modify their propaganda program. The light Association, dominant organization of the power lobby, held its annual convention in Atlantic City last week. Grant attended.

"No change was planned," was Grant's response. "The sentiment there was to expand our work as much as possible."

Propagandizing through the newspapers will go on, Grant said, including the dissemination of material on controversial economic subjects.

WIFE ADMITS GORDON GAVE HER $155,000

The memory of Mrs. Eva Etta Gordon, on trial in superior court with her sisters, Zella Hessel and Mrs. Rae Weichman, in connection with the larceny of her husband, George W. Gordon, from the Eastern Steamship Lines, Inc., failed her frequently on the stand today.

Cross-examined by Asst. Dist. Atty. Frederick T. Doyle, the witness was prone to reply: "I don't know," or "I don't remember" in answer to questions regarding the amount of money she received from her husband.

Asked if she had not received $155,000 during the months of October, November and December of 1927, Mrs. Gordon said she didn't know, but admitted the amount when her statement was read.

Asked if the large sums of money which she received did not arouse her curiosity, the witness said "No." Then her statement was read in which she told of questioning her husband regarding his income, when he replied: "Don't worry, I never stole a nickel."

In connection with Mrs. Gordon's statement that she believed her husband to be a millionaire, she was asked if she had visited his home in Everett before their marriage, and replied she had.

"Was it the home of a millionaire?" Doyle asked. "It was a very comfortable home," she replied.

"It was a modest home, wasn't it?" "Yes."

The witness contradicted the testimony of W. K. Baker, comptroller of the Eastern Steamship Company, who testified previously she had visited his office on December 14, when he told her of irregularities in her husband's accounts. Mrs. Gordon denied having made the visit.

She admitted having gone to Kidder, Peabody & Co. with her husband, where he purchased for her $25,000 worth of stock. Asked if she had wealth before her marriage the witness replied: "Yes, $47."

SMOKE DRIVES HOTEL GUESTS

Several guests of Hotel Brunswick, at Boylston and Clarendon sts., hastily departed their rooms and suites today when smoke rolled up from a flue fire in the kitchen and swept down in a pall, swirling into open windows.

Because of the fire box location and the thick smoke, two alarms were sounded, the first by Matthew Maloney, taxi driver in front of the hotel and brother of Jim Maloney, boxer.

Damage from the fire, consisting wholly of burning grease in the flue, was estimated at $2000.

Thousands were attracted to the scene by the smoke, and trolley traffic was halted.

The choking smoke, driven downward by the breeze, was so thick and black for a few minutes that firemen and pedestrians in the streets could hardly see three feet ahead of them.

The blaze itself required only a few minutes to extinguish, most of the damage resulting from the smoke that blackened walls, ceilings and costly furnishings in the hostelry.

DEATH THREAT STORY IS TOLD BY ENWRIGHT

Salem, June 13—With a revolver pointed at his heart, Frederick W. Enwright, Boston and Lynn publisher, was threatened with death and disposal of his body in Nahant Harbor, he testified in Superior Court today.

The publisher went on the stand and described his alleged kidnaping, for which Nesib El Jah, a former employe, is on trial before Judge Nelson P. Brown and a jury.

Enwright's chauffeur, Frederick Dutton, has pleaded guilty to the same charge as that against which El Jah is battling.

In detailing the alleged kidnaping and his being kept prisoner in a Nahant cottage, Enwright declared he left his home in Ocean st., Lynn, January 19, with Frederick Dutton driving the car.

The chauffeur headed along Lynn Shore drive, "which was not the usual way."

"I was reading my newspaper," testified Enwright, "when the car suddenly slowed down. I saw Mr. El Jah coming toward the car from the sidewalk.

"Mr. Dutton opened the door of the car and Mr. El Jah stepped in. He had a revolver in his hand. He pressed it against me and said that if I made an outcry, he would shoot me through the heart.

"El Jah sat to my right. He said to the chauffeur, 'Go along, Freddie.'"

The publisher said the car was driven into Maple ave., Nahant, where El Jah instructed Dutton to get out and open the door. Then Dutton took a key out of his pocket and opened the door and all entered the cottage.

"El Jah pointed the gun at my heart and said, 'I am going to kill you.' He said he was connected with a gang that wanted to do away with me. He said he had two parties outside called Snake and Cannonball. El Jah said, 'They will dispose of your body in the harbor tonight.' He demanded $2500.

"I said, 'I will give you $2500 if you let me go.' Mr. Dutton said, 'Why don't you get the money now or bump him off.'"

CAPITAL LAUDS MEXICAN LINDY

Washington, June 13 (AP)—With its anxieties for the safety of Capt. Emilio Carranza quieted and its preliminary reception out of the way, Washington turned today to a round of entertainments for the Mexican goodwill aviator who returned his country's compliments for the visit of Col. Lindbergh to Mexico City.

After a long sleep Carranza was fit and ready for the program arranged in his honor, including the laying of a wreath on the tomb of the unknown soldier at Arlington National Cemetery, and, accompanied by Ambassador Tellez, a visit with President Coolidge.

Noted aviators, including Lieut. Lester Maitland, who flew to Hawaii, vied with each other in extolling the flying skill and cool judgment of the young flier in landing his plane at Mooresville, N. C., after a heavy fog had turned back even the seasoned air mail pilots.

President Coolidge and the chiefs of aviation in the army and navy and other government departments were alike warm in their praise of Carranza's feat.

The flier took his laurels modestly and indicated he would fly back in his plane, the "Mexico-Excelsior," which he said was "the best in the world."

FULLER ORDERS DRIVE ON AUTO OFFENDERS

Governor Fuller today requested Police Commissioner Wilson to instruct officers in his department to exercise all vigilance in apprehending auto regulation violators.

In response to the request, Police Supt. Crowley issued a general order to all division commanders, at the instance of the commissioner, ordering the instructions passed down to patrolmen.

Within half an hour after the order had been sent out, Patrolman Edward Lawless of the East Dedham st. station haled into municipal court Francis H. Wilson of Commonwealth ave., charged with assault and battery on another motorist and with driving in a menner dangerous to the lives and safety of the public.

NABBED AFTER CHASE.

The man alleged to have been assaulted was Milton Heyman, also of Commonwealth ave., Allston.

Policeman Lawless testified that he and Heyman lost Wilson after a wild chase of two miles along Washington st. from Dover st., during which run Wilson drove his car between Elevated structure uprights, whirled around other automobiles, shot by trolley cars on the left-hand side—all at a speed of between 40 and 45 miles.

The policeman and Heyman slowed down, according to the former's testimony, because they feared hitting someone. Wilson was traced through the car number and brought into court.

Judge Devlin found Wilson guilty on both charges and continued the case for sentence.

In his request to Commissioner Wilson for more police vigilance, Governor Fuller said he was making the same request of the State department of public safety, and of other police heads throughout the Commonwealth.

The Governor cited the increasing number of fatalities by automobiles on the highways and reminded that there is a State fund set aside out of which to reward persons who cause arrest and conviction of "hit-and-run" drivers.

It has been brought forcibly to his attention, Governor Fuller declared, that a certain class of automobile drivers have become more reckless than ever ,and only the exercise of constant vigilance on the part of the police can succeed in overcoming this recklessness.

Commissioner Wilson, in his general order issued through Supt. Crowley, instruted that names of policemen who apprehend careless drivers be sent to him that he may turn them over to the Governor.

BANK ROBBERS SLAY 4TH MAN

Liberal, Kan., June 13 (AP)—Discovery of the body of a man in an abandoned shack near here today left four desperadoes who recently robbed a bank at Lamar, Col., credited with a fourth murder.

The body was identified as that of E. A. Kessinger, assistant cashier of the First National Bank of Lamar. He was abducted by the robbers May 23, last, when they fled with a large amount of loot, after killing A. N. Parrish, president of the bank, and his son, John Parrish, the cashier.

Located in the Bad Lands of western Kansas, the shack apparently had not been searched by hundreds of possemen who patrolled parts of four states for several days after the robbery. While there were suggestions that the body may have been placed in the hut recently, this theory generally was scouted.

EXPELLED GIRL ADMITS VIOLATING RULES

A Story of Love and the French Revolution

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

CLEONIE DE MONTSORBIER, an aristocrat of the French Revolution, has been rescued from the guillotine through the intervention of Citizen-Deputy Chauvinière. Posing in male attire as his secretary, she has been brought from Paris to a village inn on the Loire. There, at dinner, expressions of wolf-like desire pierce through Chauvinière's attitude of disinterested urbanity. Cleonie locks herself in her room. She hears him pacing to and fro outside. Finally he raps sharply on the door. The noise brings her to her feet in a tumult of fear.

CHAPTER IX

THAT the agents of the committee were active is not to be doubted. In fact, their activities were proved by the recapture on the morrow near Chatillon of the horse which the girl had ridden, and, later, by the discovery in a ditch near Souvigny of a black riding coat, boots and other articles of apparel which Chauvinière recognized as those worn by the fugitive, as well as of an empty portfolio of black leather with a metal clasp which the representative acknowledged for his own private property. Of the fugitive herself, however, there was no trace. The agents inclined to the convenient belief that she was dead, and pointed to the clothes as evidence.

Chauvinière [illegible] them with his contempt. "Women do not undress themselves to die by the roadside, you imbeciles. Continue the search. It will be rendered more difficult by the fact that she had changed her apparel, but continue it. [illegible] any stranger [illegible] hear. Strangers do not move unperceived in country districts. Dispatch yourselves."

They returned to their quest [illegible] and grumbling among themselves and confiding in one another that the citizen-representative was an obstinate pig of a mule, an arrogant bully who gave himself the airs of an aristocrat and who would come to an evil end.

Days were added to those already spent, until there had been made up a week during which Chauvinière sat [illegible] at the Sign of the [illegible] [illegible] who sought [illegible] apparently [illegible] to the affairs of the [illegible] which were responsible for his visit to the Nivernais.

When reminded of this by the [illegible] Desjardins, he stormed first at the audacity of the reminder, then swore profusely by the new gods and the old that the Nivernais should know of presence. With that he took up his neglected duties, conquering his infatuation and vain regrets, and putting Mlle. de Montsorbier at least for the present from his mind.

NAPPING DRIVER FINED $100 IN CAMBRIDGE

Driving a car with his eyes closed through Putnam sq., Cambridge, proved disastrous to Linus C. Leavens of Manchester, N. H.

Traffic Officer Arthur T. Coffey on duty in the square, saw Leavens and [illegible] him to stop. Leavens evidently did not hear Coffey and continued on, causing the latter to sound a whistle.

That was the story told Judge Stone by Coffey in the East Cambridge court today when Leavens and [illegible] Oscar A. Duval of Manchester were arraigned, the former for operating an auto while under the influence of liquor and the latter on a drunk charge.

Leavens, in his defense, testified he and Leavens each had a bottle of "home brew" in Manchester before entering the car for the trip to Boston [illegible] and was certain the [illegible] did not make either of them drunk.

Judge Stone said he believed Officer Coffey and fined Leavens $100. The drunk charge against him was filed.

3000 CHILDREN ON GAY OUTING

More than 3000 happy boys and girls who are rarely afforded an outing wheeled their way to Nantasket today as flag-bedecked autos sped out of the city for the 21st annual children's outing, arranged by Chester I. Campbell, secretary of the Boston Automobile Dealers Association.

Ice cream, candy and "eats" and plenty of [illegible] greeted [illegible] on their arrival at the [illegible] resort.

FINDS FOODS SOLD AT CIRCUS ALL RIGHT

Dr. P. H. Mullowney

Director Hearst Health Laboratory

Yesterday a very rigid examination was made of the vendors' booths at the circus grounds. Three inspectors of the Boston health department were also on the grounds.

Dr. Mullowney

The foodstuffs offered for sale were found to be in very good condition. Pop and lemonade were all of good quality and dispensed in a sanitary manner.

One party dispensing ice cream was [illegible] not to sell it from the scoop or from an open cone but in sealed packages. Frankforts being dispensed were of good quality. We found none of the hamburger sandwiches that were adulterated with stale bread.

Several cans of corn were examined recently at the Hearst Health Laboratory. This corn was alleged to have caused sickness to a party in Revere. The corn was found to be affected only slightly. Some evidence on the tin of smut and one or two dark places throughout the corn. Previous samples of this same lot were found to be very heavily affected on the tin and in the corn itself.

Black smut is a condition arising from the action of the corn on the iron of the tin, the blackness being caused by sulphide of iron. I have had several reports of sickness being caused by eating this corn affected with black smut and it is certainly undesirable even when only slightly affected.

DIDN'T GET FAIR DEAL, SHE SAYS

Admission that she entertained men "after hours" in the guest room of Holmes cottage, Wheaton College, was made today by Miss Bertha Ludwig, wealthy New York girl, in her $25,000 suit before a master appointed by the supreme court.

Miss Ludwig charges [illegible] and [illegible] extension from Wheaton on the eve of her graduation.

The [illegible] were not dismissed as [illegible] warning that [illegible] qualified [illegible] She charged she felt the student cabinet was prejudiced against [illegible]

After admitting minor infractions today, she told of an auto ride with Harriet [illegible] a fellow student, at the wheel. The term "minor" was admitted over strenuous objection by Atty. Harold Davis, counsel for the college.

"I [illegible] for a ride May 7 [illegible] the girl testified [illegible] was summoned before the [illegible] committee, which [illegible] major offenses. Later Harriet was called before the student cabinet, which tried minor offenses."

Mexico City, June 13 (AP)—Dispatches from Guadalajara today said seven insurgents, one army officer and one soldier, were killed in a battle at Atap[illegible], on the Jalisco-Michoacan border. One man was captured.

El Universal Grafico said that Isaac Jorge, a priest, was brought from Guadalajara and put in jail in Mexico City on charges of being implicated in the insurgent movement.

LOOTING FOLLOWS VICTORY BY NATIONALIST TROOPS

Tientsin, China, June 13 (AP)—Meeting but little resistance, Shansi troops have taken Tientsin and today the public buildings were flying the Nationalist flag. Northern soldiers and various civilians took advantage of the turnover to loot shops. For a time the residents were panic stricken and fled to the foreign concessions.

June Crash Records Stress Safety Need

By Frank A. Goodwin

Highway Safety Editor, Boston Evening American, and Former Registrar of Motor Vehicles for Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

"AN APPALLING RECORD."

Capt. George A. Parker, registrar of motor vehicles, so characterized last week's record of motor accidents, the toll for early June.

Frank A. Goodwin

The boys are running wild again and [illegible] does well to strike out [illegible] the bandits with PUBLICITY.

Pedestrians are [illegible] in the city [illegible] this is [illegible] true of children.

The great percentage of the cause of fatalities has been among occupants of automobiles.

The daily record of accidents is made up chiefly of drunken and careless drivers, with altogether too large a sprinkling of hit-and-run accidents.

The average driver nowadays is in too much of a hurry and the only thing that will slow him down is STRICT AND IMPARTIAL LAW ENFORCEMENT.

MUST BE NO LETTING DOWN

There must be no LETTING DOWN by the police and the courts or our streets will be strewn with victims.

Everyone seems to be in a hustle hurry, and our highways provide innumerable examples of a SELFISH DESIRE to get somewhere, and, too often, nowhere in particular at the EXPENSE of the RIGHTS and the SAFETY OF OTHERS.

Everyone seems to be TAKING A CHANCE these days. On the law of averages, sooner or later something is bound to happen to the man who TAKES A CHANCE.

Twenty-five per cent of fatal accidents occur at intersections of streets.

WOULD CUT ACCIDENTS

OBEDIENCE to that single common-sense law requiring that operators slow down at intersections of streets would cut accidents tremendously.

The operator who has acquired the habit of speeding across intersecting streets is safe so far as accidents with the careful man is concerned, but every so often he is bound to meet another FOOL who has the same habit.

Then comes the crash with loss of property and possibly life.

Most accidents to pedestrians take place at or near intersections.

It is necessary that the police prosecute selfish and careless operators who dash across intersections without slowing down.

A BAD RECORD

The record for the first week in [illegible] against the State's VERY BAD [illegible] the record for the month of May was BETTER THAN ANY MAY since 1923.

According to statistics from the registry office there were 51 persons killed in May of this year as compared with 56 for 1924—66 for 1925—53 for 1926 and 66 for 1927.

This record gave great hope for the future but suddenly came the early June epidemic of accidents, showing that drastic action must be taken at once by all law enforcement agencies.

The registry department, the police and the courts hold the remedy in their hands.

NOW IS THE TIME TO CHECK THINGS.

Remember the slogan is "SAFETY ALWAYS."

SAFETY DRIVE PLEASING TO MRS. CURLEY

"In commending the splendid work for safety performed by the Boston Evening American I feel that the mothers of New England see your newspaper as the chief aid in saving their little ones from Demon Speed."

These words of Mrs. James M. Curley, wife of the former mayor of Boston, were but a few in her praise as she read the record of no children killed in the city of Boston by autos during May.

"Let us have a safety slogan now that will be observed by every operator of a motor vehicle," she added.

"Both Mr. Curley and I think everyone should remind himself constantly that it is better to be 10 minutes late than on time, with a lifelong regret.

"The eyes of thousands of New England mothers are turned to your newspaper as the saviour of the little ones. The record for May should be equaled every month, and with your help it will."

"VOICE OF GOLD" IS SILENCED IN PULPIT

Omaha, Neb., June 13 (AP)—The reading of chapters from the pastor's novel, "Voice of Gold," at Sunday evening services has brought a vote of disapproval from elders of the Benson Presbyterian Church here.

The elders asked the Rev. Albert R. Fiske to resign. Fiske said he would silence the "Voice of Gold."

"The book," he explained, "is based on the experiences of a young unsophisticated minister. Many churches have been trying to maintain interest in their Sunday evening services and I felt justified in doing this unusual thing. Instead of writing sermons, I wrote a story."

"We want good old Gospel sermons, not books," said Gus Getting, one of the elders.

REVERE BEACH IN GALA ARRAY FOR DOLLAR DAY

Dollar Day was in full swing at Revere Beach today. Every amusement place along the shore front was dressed in gala array prepared to meet the greatest crowd ever to visit that popular resort so early in the season.

Dollar Day is an innovation for the famous playground and was inaugurated by the Revere Chamber of Commerce so as to better introduce the visitors to the many forms of entertainment that may be found there. By Jack Conway

"HELLO, there, Mr. Boston! How's the oldtimer?"

Tom Green, president of the City Council and the young man who makes the Morning Glories bloom in Charlestown, was on the other end of the wire.

"I would like you to hop into your chariot and buzz over to Charlestown on the evening of June 17," chirped Tom. "We are going to stage a big banquet at the State Armory as part of the June 17 celebration and we would like you to mitt the gang.

"We have invited Gene Tunney, Jack Sharkey, Jim Maloney, Al Mello, Tex Rickard and everybody else in 'Who's Who in Sport.'"

Mr. Boston [illegible] kindly asked what time the banquet would end.

"About midnight the following evening," popped back the honorable Mister Green.

Naturally Mr. Boston promised to don the old tux and sit in with Tom and the gang on the 17th.

"CHARLESTOWN has always been a redhot sport center," went on Mr. Boston as he hung up the receiver. "The Morning Glories, in particular, have been very much on the job when it has come to putting over big [illegible] in at [illegible].

"It was Marty Killilea, one of the brightest of the Glories, who piloted thumping Johnny Wilson to the middleweight championship. The Wilson-[illegible] bout was promoted by Roy Green, another one of the live wire Glories.

"When I think of Charlestown as a sport center, my thoughts always dwell on Matty Baldwin, oldtime lightweight star. He was a [illegible] to me. He would walk through most of the present day lightweights, and even welterweights, without getting a sweat up.

"[illegible] of South Boston, a [illegible] class boxer, was one of Matty's [illegible] rivals.

"Harry M[illegible], former welterweight [illegible] and Danny S[illegible], [illegible] hailed from Charlestown. Tom O'[illegible] [illegible] the Bunker Hill district.

HARRY KELLEY, one of the best handlers of boxers in the country, dropped in to tell Mr. Boston [illegible] of Lenny Murray, New York lightweight.

"Mur[illegible] like a good prospect and should go a long ways along the [illegible]," [illegible] Harry. "He is ready to tackle any of the New England [illegible].

"I [illegible] into Earl Colby, former matchmaker of the boxing club at Frank[illegible], N. H.," said Kelley. "He tells me he has severed his relations with the Franklin Club and is now making the matches for the [illegible] White Sox Club at Lake Spofford, N. H. He will stage his opening [illegible] with Joe Costello of Boston and Alex Gibbons of Clare[illegible] [illegible] headliners."

[illegible] a few kind words about the ring come-back of Jim [illegible]. At one time Harry acted as the South Boston heavyweight's [illegible].

Athletes Traitors to Old Traditions

By MYLES T. McSWEENEY

INTERLOCUTOR—Mirandy, who was that college student I seen you with last night?

MIRANDY—Sah, dat was no college student you seen me wit last night. Dat was the captain of the football team.

—Remembered from the Minstrel Show.

The good old days when the ribs of printers and plumbers rattled with laughter over the above gag are gone. Truck drivers can no longer recognize fellow members of the union when dear old Whatsthis battles for glory and gold on the gridiron.

Old times are changed, as the Last Minstrel lamented, and old manners gone. Cops now sleep in sequestered quiet, startled no more by the referee's whistle that once brought them running to their place in the college backfield.

For it has been discovered tabulated and certified that college athletes have brains. Two letters that still linger on the glass-topped mahogany desk for days tell the [illegible].

ONE announcement from the University of Pennsylvania proudly boasts that its students, including athletes, were asked "close to 3600 questions ranging from truck farming to Greek tragedies, from metaphysics to women's dress styles and included questions upon literature, history, classic and foreign languages, political science and business law."

Not to bore the reader with dry statistics, the substance of the report is this. Some of the athletes knew all about some of the subjects listed, all knew something about some of them, and compared with the non athletes, the boys who do or die for dear old Alma Mater, in some instances, knew more than those who took part in no sport.

SURELY this is encouraging.

Formerly, when a burly guard was surrounded by a bevy of beautiful but dumb co-eds, the rest of the student body, the non athletes, took to reading magazine ads to discover some other way to become popular besides indulging in rough sports.

They purchased the remedies for halitosis, dandruff, pyorrhea; they read Elbert Hubbard's scrap book, took up Pelmanism and personal magnetism; they took saxophone lessons and learned the latest dance steps.

But somehow, the big guard with a vocabulary of a hundred words was more popular than the polished Phi Beta Kappa boys.

Today, the big, burly guard is just as popular with the fair co-eds.

What is the reason? The universities [illegible] [illegible] at [illegible] [illegible] because they can discuss Greek [illegible] metaphysics [illegible] law, and all the other subjects that a student might discuss.

ANXIOUS to learn the truth, we disguised ourselves as a college student. It was a bit difficult, after five years, to look [illegible] but we managed it and entered an [illegible] at which students, athletes and co-eds were gathered.

Over in the corner, surrounded by a circle of pretty girls, like a cigar butt in a vase of flowers stood the captain of the football team. Approaching in single file, like an Indian, we finally reached a point where we could listen to the conversation.

We expected to hear something like this:

"Yes, girls, I find the philosophic system of Leibnitz most intriguing. I am fascinated, really, by his lofty [illegible].

"What do I think of Euripides? Well, of course, his works are permeated by that Greek fatalism. Kismet, as the Mussulmen say.

"No, girls, there are only a few of us who understand Einstein's theory. It would be a bit difficult to explain it."

HERE'S what we actually heard, copied verbatim from stenographic notes:

"Sure. Them guys were a cinch for us. Why I went through the line like a 'dip' in a subway crowd.

"Naw, not me. I guess I'll get [illegible] or this colletch loses a good backfield man, what I mean.

"Sure, we're all goin over to the Silver Shoe after this is over. Want to come along?

"Let's go out and shake up some dust, Pauline; my dogs are barkin' for action."

AS long as athletes are supposed to know something, and why shouldn't they, we commend the universities, however much we deplore the passing of the real athlete who maintained the best traditions of his kind by disdaining the classics, metaphysics, science, everything, with the possible exceptions of pay day and women's dress styles.

STURDY SWEDE—SET FOR SONNY

Charlie Hansen, who is to grapple with Dynamite Gus Sonnenberg at the Arena tomorrow night, has a determined expression on his face. He will make a desperate attempt to halt the winning tackles of the sensational star. The football tactics, which made Gus a member of the All-America team, should give Charlie a lot of trouble. With a shot at the title in sight, all the boys will give their best.

THURSDAY'S WINNER TO MEET LEWIS

Ed "Strangler" Lewis, heavyweight king of the wrestling world, will meet the winner of the Charlie Hansen-Dynamite Gus Sonnenberg feature bout at the Arena on Thursday night.

It was the original plan of Bowser to send either the winner of the Hansen-Sonnenberg battle or the winner of the "Bull" Komar-Stanley Stasiak co-feature finish match against Lewis but he received hundreds of calls from the wrestling fans of Boston asking that either Hansen or Sonnenberg, who have never met Lewis on [illegible], [illegible] the opportunity of going against the champion.

GAGNON SIGNS TO TACKLE GAINES

Jack Gagnon, New Bedford giant who still persists in his declaration that he can take the measure of Jimmy Maloney, South Boston heavyweight, will open a campaign next Monday night, which he feels confident will land him a match with the peninsula idol, when he faces Larry Gaines of Toronto, Canada, recent conqueror of Tom Kirby of Roxbury, in a Hub ring.

Gagnon will meet the Canadian heavyweight champion in the feature bout of the Argonne A. A. at Braves Field according to an announcement by Promoter Eddie Mack.

Armand Emmanuel, Jack Dempsey's choice as next heavyweight champion, who had contracted to come to the Hub to meet Gagnon, was prevented at the last moment by a ruling of the Cleveland Boxing Commission. The Cleveland solons ordered Emmanuel to go through with a bout in that city before coming to Boston and rather than to enter into a conflict, Mack waived claims to the coast boy, but not before he tied up Emmanuel to meet the best available opponent here, June 9.

Gaines impressed Hub fans in his lone appearance here as one of the outstanding heavyweights in the East, and a victory over the Canadian by Gagnon is sure to put him in line for some of the matches that he now seeks.

Low Blow Punches Hurt by Ruling

Montreal, Que., June 13 (AP)—Boxers who commit fouls in Montreal will suffer in their pocketbooks.

Under a new regulation of the athletic commission of Montreal boxers who foul either accidentally or otherwise, will be paid pro rata only for the rounds in which they have engaged.

Thus if a fighter contracts to box 10 rounds for $1500 and fouls his opponent in the third, he will be paid only $450. The rule is to be invoked also in the case of a fighter who aims a foul and is found on medical examination to have been struck a fair blow.

Tribe Acquires Catcher Hoeffner

Poor overworked Zack Taylor is to get a little badly needed rest at last. Yesterday the Braves purchased from the Rochester [illegible] catcher Hoeffner who formerly caught for the Giants and Pirates.

He balked on being sent to the minors and was outside the pale of organized ball for a while. He was recently restored to good standing and his purchase by the Boston club followed.

THORNEY LEA TO HOLD 3-DAY GOLF TOURNEY

The open tournament of the Thorney Lea Golf Club of Brockton, Friday and Saturday, June 15 and 16, has been extended to cover Monday, June 18. Three days instead of two, as previously announced.

There is no golf play in Brockton on Monday, so visiting players will find no congestion on the course. The committee announce 18 holes of the most fascinating golf in New England, with two sterling gross and two net prizes. Consolation prize is a pair of made-to-order shoes. Entrance fee will be $1 and lunch can be secured at the club.

'Twixt Tee and Cup

By BILL GRIMES

The open tournament players are getting out their road maps and familiarizing themselves with the shortest cuts from Sharon to Thorny Lea.

Sharon and Thorny Lea are holding handicap medal play tournaments on Friday and Saturday of this week and if the weather is fair, there will be record breaking crowds at both of these events.

The two day Tedesco Country Club four ball invitation will wind up this evening. The field is larger than last season and somewhat faster, although many of the low handicap players experienced some trouble ducking the over abundance of traps.

John Keenan is busy teaching daily from early morning until dark at his outdoor course at the De Witt Clinton school in Newton. Despite the bad weather, which has prevailed all spring, Keenan has had few idle hours, as new pupils are signing up for his ten lesson course practically every day. Golfers from every section of Greater Boston are enrolled. It is the first outdoor school ever operated in this vicinity.

Jock McAndrews, one of the most promising of the younger professionals in New England, has been [illegible] to hang up his clubs for a few weeks. Jock was very much disappointed that he was unable to play at Charles River in the U. S. open qualifying [illegible] but a few weeks rest will put him back at top form, and then watch him go.

There will be very few absentees when the New England Professional Golfers' organization stages its amateur-professional tournament at the Manchester, N. H., Country Club, one week from next Monday. The Manchester layout has developed wonderfully in the past two years and offers one of the best tests of golf in New England. There are some of the finest golfers in this country at the course and now that the fairways have come [illegible] course is in championship condition.

In [illegible] for the Fisher and Daugate tournament today at the Weston Golf Club, Gus White, president of the Sandy Burr Country Club, has been polishing up his game at John Keenan's School. With Keenan close at hand, Gus White plays good golf, but like many others, when put on his own does not go so well. With all due respect to the president of Sandy Burr, it is safe to predict that Miss Aubrey White is going to see more of Weston [illegible] than she ever did on any of her previous visits.

There will be a [illegible] for the [illegible] prizes [illegible] the Albemarle Golf Club in the [illegible] handicap tournament next week. The Albemarle [illegible] has elected to divide the field into four classes according to [illegible] for each class. As Albemarle will be the mecca of some two hundred golfers [illegible] from Friday and Saturday [illegible] phone West Newton 2800 for starting times.

[illegible] first big event and as every golfer in [illegible] has heard of this wonderful [illegible] The [illegible] invitation will be conducted exactly as [illegible] Essex [illegible] Wogan [illegible] turned over [illegible] scoreboard to the Salem Country Club which will assure the success of the event.

TRAPSHOOTING RECORDS BROKEN

Tecumseh, Ont., June 13 (AP)—The record for consecutive hits on registered targets of the Amateur Trapshooting Association has fallen before the deadly accuracy of the champion of Texas, E. F. Woodward of Houston.

Competing in the grand international trapshooting tournament here, Woodward yesterday ran a three-day string of shattered birds to [illegible] before he missed a straightaway target on his 157th shot of the day.

This phenomenal shooting enabled Woodward to excel by a wide margin the old record of 455 consecutive hits set last year by [illegible] Dering, president of the A. T. A.

Woodward started his string on Saturday at Joliet, Ill., breaking 100 straight. He added 20[illegible] more on Monday and 156 yesterday.

The second day of the international tournament saw several champions crowned.

The international amateur title went to S. M. Crothers of Philadelphia, who made all but one of his 200 targets. Woodward and three others turned in scores of 19[illegible]

Mrs. Harry Harrison of Rochester, N. Y., won the women's title with a score of 187 and the [illegible] score run up by Homer Clark of [illegible] carried with it the professional crown. Young Howard Keefer of Orrville, O., won the junior championship by breaking 183 of a possible 200 targets.

The team trophy went to Ohio, with Illinois second, Michigan third and Ontario fourth.

DIRIGIBLE TO FOLLOW SHELLS ON HUDSON

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 13—For the first time in the history of the classic Poughkeepsie rowing regatta a dirigible will follow the crews over the course on the Hudson.

According to an announcement received here today it was learned that the United States navy dirigible Los Angeles has been ordered to report to Poughkeepsie on June [illegible] the day of the races.

Together with the submarine chasers and cruisers which always are here to [illegible] on the Midshipmen's [illegible], the navy will have plenty of support as it sweeps down the course.

FAMED SPRINTERS TO MEET HERE SATURDAY

An international sprint duel involving Jose Barrientos of Havana, Cuba's Olympic entry, Claude Bracey of Rice Institute, Texas, and Jimmy Quinn of Holy Cross is contemplated as an added attraction to the Eastern Olympic tryouts at the Yankee Stadium Saturday.

Barrientos was clocked in 0:09 [illegible] seconds for 100 yards in Cuba this year. Bracey recently won the National Collegiate A. A. 100 and 220 in 0:09 3-5 and 0:20 9-10 and ran the 100 with the wind in 0:09 5-10 early this spring, and Quinn won the Intercollegiate A. A. A. A. 100 in 0:09 9-10 in the mud.

COLUMBIA AND CALIFORNIA DANGEROUS

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June [illegible] (INS)—With the rowing situation considerably clarified by the time trials of the California, Navy, Columbia and Syracuse varsity crews yesterday and the arrival of the Cornell squad this morning, the final week's work in preparation for the intercollegiate regatta on June [illegible] got under way in earnest today.

California and Columbia stand forth as the most dangerous crews in the race. Both rowed the course in far more impressive time last night than did the Navy, which seems to have lost the [illegible] that made Navy crews [illegible] contenders up [illegible] last year when they fell by the wayside.

Both California and Columbia rowed the course in [illegible] time of an [illegible] can be believed. And there [illegible] their reports [illegible]

Newton Club Will Be Fit for Big Tourneys With Longer Course Yardage

By BILL GRIMES

At a recent meeting, the Commonwealth Country Club voted to dispose of the seventh and eighth holes, two of the poorest, from a golfing viewpoint, on the course, and to purchase the large tract bordering on the second and fourteenth fairways and extending across the two ponds to Sargent st.

This newly acquired area contains 28 acres, and it will be possible to construct at least six holes, although the present plans only call for two.

The Commonwealth Country Club displayed rare judgment and foresight in making these changes. The seventh and eighth holes are on the most valuable land on the Chestnut Hill course. There is a new development under way in the vicinity of that section of Commonwealth which was likely in the near future to bring about a condition whereby the City of Newton would step forth and by right of eminent domain put a street across those fairways, which would be ruinous to the Commonwealth lay-out.

Commonwealth has been receiving some very tempting offers for the area running up to Ward st. But until the club had been given an option on the land owned by the Boston Ice Co. it had turned a deaf ear to all propositions. As soon as the Boston Ice Co. had placed a figure on its 28 acres the proposition was placed before the members, who immediately voted to revamp the course.

The large pond has been drained and the two new holes will be constructed in that area. The new ones will be played second and third. The second tee will be on top of the mound back of the first green and the hole will be from [illegible] to 450 yards.

The green will be on the slope of the hill beyond the old pond. It will be a large elevated green of the terraced type. The third tee will be to the left of the second green and the green will be on the face of the knoll back of the first green.

According to Wayne E. Stiles, who has submitted plans for the two new holes, there will be lagoons on both sides of the second and third fairways and it is planned to use the brook as a [illegible] of filling them as was originally intended.

With the two new holes in operation the present second will be the fourth and then the course will be played as now until after the short sixth, from where it will be necessary to walk back to the ninth tee. Another hole across the pond would eliminate this long walk but this will not be put into effect until later.

The other changes which will go into effect next year will be the lengthening of the 14th and 15th. The 14th green will be set back about 50 yards, that is, beyond the present 15th tee, and with this tee well back in the corner, the 15th will be a real dog leg and it will take an exceptionally long drive to get out to a position for an open second shot to the green.

RISKING A FALL AT DIFFICULT JUMP

RACING THE BONESETTER IN STEEPLECHASE LEAP

The field is close together at this stage of the Wingfoot Selling Steeplechase, run at the Aqueduct track in New York. That third horse seems to be going right through the hedge. If the animal brushes through the thick barrier too heavily, however, a fall results. Local horse racing fans will get a chance to see the best kind of steeplechasing this week and next at the Country Club. Some of the jumps there are famous in 'chase circles all over the country. The Brookline course is unsurpassed in the world. Even the English admire the Brookline layout.

With Red Sox hopping back on the winning stride, they remain in running for a first division spot. The Indians up in fourth place are but two and a half games ahead of the Sox.

The [illegible] hold a margin of only 15 points and if the Red Sox win this afternoon and the Macks administer a thumping to George Moriarty it will be moving day for the Fenway field entry.

Will he beat his record of 1927?

Ballyhoo Always the Same, Gene Finds

By GENE TUNNEY
Heavyweight Champion of the World

SPECULATOR, N. Y., June 13—Recently I received a copy of an old New York newspaper in which the whole front page was devoted to a heavyweight championship encounter.

It was an exciting story of the match between Heenan and Morrison held at Niagara Falls, N. Y., in 1858. If it were not for the faded paper on which the story was printed, one might easily have taken it to be a present day edition.

Curiously enough, it differed little from contemporary journalism [illegible]

What they ate, how many hours they slept, etc., all were evidently matters of moment to the reader.

[illegible] fitted into the newspaper canvas depicting a heavyweight championship match.

Reading it, one was vicariously [illegible] carried a note of distinction. It was the careful and almost flawless style of writing. It might have been written by a master of English [illegible] jargon.

INSIDE the paper, however, on the editorial page, was an article explaining [illegible] readers who were opposed to professional boxing [illegible] boxing contest.

[illegible] of all ages will sit at home or gather in public [illegible] to listen to the radio account.

Yet the same protests are put forth from time to time by those who fail to find the sporting element present in this form of sport.

AS I read and re-read this interesting old sheet which was sent to me by a boxing fan, the thought came to mind that only [illegible] changes take place even in three-quarters of a century.

Then, as now, the friends and admirers of boxing were in the majority. The thrill received by the spectators in watching two men trained to the near point of physical perfection [illegible] their bodies weaving in [illegible] movements [illegible] on guard or [illegible] punches, was the same as it is today.

The same day I opened a package to find a handsome bound volume [illegible] the history of pugilism from [illegible] to the heavyweight [illegible] of the last century.

[illegible] taken from old paintings [illegible] figures were scattered through the pages. Ancient be-whiskered Romans, stalwart men, wore the sharp-pointed cestis—the hand covering with which they [illegible] opponents.

LOMSKI IS AN 8-5 FAVORITE OVER LATZO

New York, June 13—Leo Lomski, the Aberdeen Assassin, and Pete Latzo, the Scranton miner, will clash in what should be a thrilling fight, yet that is not the feature of the pugilistic doings scheduled for Ebbets Field tonight.

The winner is assured of a match with Mickey Walker, the middleweight champion, but even that is a minor issue.

Jimmy Johnston, the manager of Latzo, has publicly stated that he will demand Lomski's disqualification if Leo uses his kidney punch, but even that is relatively insignificant.

The big feature is the attendance. It will determine for once and for all whether the current slump in boxing is due to poor attractions and high prices, or whether it will be permanent.

Lomski rules an 8 to 5 favorite but Johnston's insistence that his kidney punch must be barred may result in trouble. The blow is Leo's pet sock.

Both fighters arrived in the city last night. They are scheduled to weigh in at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Two ten-rounders, a six-rounder and a four-rounder will precede the main bout. K. O. Phil Kaplan and Harry Martone of Jersey City meet in the semi-windup. Another "ten" will be staged by George Kid Lee and Eddie Kid Whalen, welterweights. Lou Barba vs. Joe Oliver, heavies, six rounds, and Tony Ferrenta vs. Don Conrad, middleweights, four rounds, complete the card.

Bouts Last Night

At Newark, N. J.—Pierre Charles, Belgian heavyweight, won decision over Bud Gorman of Kenosha, Wis., 10.

At Wilmington, Del.—Joey Scalfaro, New York, won from Tommy Dundee, Camden, N. J., 8.

Mixed Foursomes Interest Champion

By MIRIAM BURNS HORN
National Golf Champion

AMONG the popular events in golf today are the mixed foursomes, with a man and a woman usually composing each team. When all the players are of equal ranking, it is an easy proposition to form an interesting match, but when they are not, strokes or bisques must be given to the weaker side.

That makes it difficult at times, for a player does not always play up to her handicap. Even then, with all the details arranged, it is just as difficult a matter to determine the best point system of play.

There are several of them which I shall mention and discuss.

With four women or four men in the foursome the common way is to play the best ball of one side against the best ball of the other, with only one point to the hole.

That means that trouble and a high score on the part of one team member is of no serious consequence unless both players slip on the same hole. However, this system does tend to develop team work, and is splendid practice.

IF the teams are mixed, men and women, they usually play two points to the hole, for the men are ordinarily longer and there would be little use in the girls' playing after they had taken the same number of strokes as their partners.

The old way in this event was to play two points, one for low ball and the other for the aggregate score. For years I have followed this principal as the standard rule, so to speak, but it seemed that it could be improved upon.

ONLY this winter in California I was educated to the improvement, too. Instead of playing low ball and aggregate score, we played two low balls, which results in two distinct and separate matches.

For some reason or other it seems to be a difficult plan for one to understand, yet it really is simple enough. It involves ordinary match play, and the regular system of figuring the results.

The low ball of both teams is compared, and the same with the high score. Take for instance, this example. Suppose one side has a four and a five against two fives.

UNDER the old plan they would receive one point for the low ball, and another for the low total score. But playing two low balls there would be only one point, as the two fives would split the point in a halved hole.

If my partner should score a birdie three and I encounter trouble and run up a six, I can see no reason for our winning a point there, because the aggregate score is the same.

If I am so poor as to take a six I think our side deserves to lose a point on that figure.

IN other words, let the birdie score a point and also the score that beats the six. I hope I make myself clear.

The point I really mean to make, as I see it, is the unfairness of winning two points on one low ball. But that is like everything else, everyone does not see the same.

The object in golf is to make it as fair as possible for everyone concerned. That is the purpose of handicaps, and likewise, so must all other events be arranged.

Georgetti to Race at Revere

Franco Georgetti, famous Italian pace follower, and American champion of last season, will make his 1928 debut in Boston Saturday night when he lines up for the 40-mile motor pace race, the feature of Nat Butler's weekly racing program.

Frankie Keenan, Revere, who won the only race at the beach oval this season; George Chapman, six times American champion; Henri Wynsdau, Belgium, and Pene Boog[illegible], Holland, are the other riders who will start in the paced race.

Under the 40-mile contest is a special triangular match that is creating [illegible] the bike fans. John Bruskie, Hoboken; Chick Meyers, Providence, and Frank Bartell, Newark, will fight it out in this event, over three one-mile heats, the winner to be decided on points.

Famous star selects OLD GOLD

"One cigarette of the four I smoked in the blindfold test was like shooting a scene successfully after a whole series of failures. It just 'clicked' and I named it as my choice. It was OLD GOLD. Which clears up a mystery, for the supply of OLD GOLDS in my Beverly Hills home is constantly being depleted. It seems that Strongheart and Rin-tin-tin are the only motion picture stars who don't smoke them."
Charlie Chaplin

MR. CHAPLIN was asked to smoke each of the four leading brands, clearing his taste with coffee between smokes. Only one question was asked. "Which one do you like the best?"

Made from the heart-leaves of the tobacco plant

How does OLD GOLD do it?

What's the secret of OLD GOLD'S winning charm? The answer is very simple. Three types of leaves grow on the tobacco plant . . . coarse, heavy top-leaves, irritating to the throat . . . withered ground-leaves, without taste or aroma . . . and the heart-leaves, rich in cool and fragrant smoking qualities. These golden-ripe heart-leaves give OLD GOLDS their honey-like smoothness. That's why so many people choose them. And that's why you too can pick them . . . even in the dark.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

IT is not just the deeds you do each day, your acts, whose import may be great or small; it is not wholly in the words you say, but in the meaning that lies back of all. It may not be your part to succor men, to lift them out of lives of dross and stain, to set their steps on upward ways again, to tune their ears once more to hope's refrain. Life may not grant you joys as deep as these, however you may long to set men free from fear and pain, from doubts and tyrannies and all the sorrow, all the care you see. But if within your inmost self you bear a steadfast purpose vowed to truth and right, you can not wholly fail; you needs must share with all your brothers something of the light.

A CHARMING SUMMER FROCK

The back extends in short yoke sections over the shoulders where it joins the fullness of the front. The sleeve is a popular style, with a narrow band cuff above which the fullness pouches prettily.

Martha Lee Tells of Luncheon Salads

By MARTHA LEE.

THE occasional salad luncheon of the past has become the salad luncheon for the "occasion" today. The [illegible] order of eating is large responsible because so many women are running on a two-meals-a-day diet. Men, of course, don't count in any scheme of luncheon parties. At noon they are supposed to be so busy [illegible] they [illegible] for only a [illegible] [illegible] at this hour [illegible] one is supposed to know anything about it. Luncheon is a woman's meal.

Martha Lee.

The hostess who merely invites her guests to come in for luncheon is likely to meet with disconcerting refusals. "I'm sorry, my dear, but you know I am not eating luncheon these days." A possible two pounds of extra weight is too "weighty" a consideration for many women. But [illegible] usually too tempting to be refused. Although a salad meal may contain all of the food elements the body needs, they will not be present in such abundance as in the ordinary course meal.

A salad may very well be the entire luncheon, if you wish. It may be large or small, according to your guests' desires. If you serve coffee and plenty of hot toast, butter and jam, with perhaps a very simple light dessert for those who wish it, the salad luncheon is sure to be a success from everyone's point of view. Here are several delicious salad recipes.

Lobster Salad in Green Pepper Cases—Remove the tendons from 2 c. of lobster meat, but keep the lobster in as large pieces as possible. Drain 1 can of asparagus tips. Cut the tops off 6 green peppers. Remove the white part and the seeds. Place several stalks of asparagus upright in the green pepper cups, and fill the center cavities with the lobster meat, seasoned with salt and paprika. Garnish with mayonnaise and capers. This quantity serves 6.

Pea, Cheese and Nut Salad—Drain a can of peas and marinate 2 c. of the drained peas in ¼ c. of French dressing. Drain off the French dressing and add to the peas ½ c. of diced or grated American cheese and [illegible] c. of crisp [illegible] nut meats. Mix lightly with mayonnaise and serve on lettuce. This quantity will make [illegible].

Beet and String Bean Salad—Marinate separately in French dressing [illegible] c. of string beans, 1 c. of diced beets and ½ c. of diced celery. Drain and then mix them together lightly, adding ¼ c. of diced sweet gherkins. Moisten with mayonnaise and serve on lettuce beds. This recipe serves 8.

Pineapple Jelly Salad—Soak 2 tbsp of gelatin for 5 minutes in ¼ c. of cold water. Add enough water to the syrup from 1 can of crushed [illegible] pineapple to make 1½ c. of liquid. Heat to boiling and dissolve the gelatin in the hot liquid. Add 2 tbsp. of lemon juice and allow to cool.

When just beginning to thicken, add ½ c. of mayonnaise and the drained crushed pineapple. Turn into a large flat mold and chill. When ready to serve, unmold and serve at the table from a large garnished platter. This recipe will serve 8.

Celery and Green Pea Salad—Marinate in French dressing 1 No. 1 can of peas and ½ c. of diced celery. Add 2 c. of orange, cut in sections, and ½ c. of chopped pecans. Toss lightly together, moisten with mayonnaise and serve in lettuce cups. This quantity serves 8.

Faithfully yours,
MARTHA LEE.

Discussion on Love

By LUCY LOWELL

LOVE is not a thing which can be forced to bud and bloom like a hothouse plant. It is not a thing of which any human being may say, "It belongs to me, therefore it is mine."

You know women—as I do, as everyone does—who tell you, "He is my husband and it's his duty to love me."

But love is not given as a matter of duty. Love goes out joyously, freely from heart to heart—or it does not go at all. Love recognizes [illegible].

You hear women say, "They are my children and so they must love me." And then these women conduct themselves in ways so unjust, so selfish, so amazingly at variance with every principle of what we think of as [illegible] [illegible] be as surely prevented from loving them as if they were hostile and disagreeable strangers.

For love does not depend upon relationship.

Love must be won, gently, prayerfully and once won it must be held in the same manner. Nothing but love wins love; if you would have the love of your husband, your children, your friends, you must love and prove it by your life.

To say that you love another is not enough; words are the cheapest thing in the world. Actions speak more truthfully, but the whole truth [illegible] thought.

If you think love you will both act and speak love and there never will be a question of your being convincing. For what you think is what you are and the very air which surrounds you will be electric with it.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Will you please tell me if a young married girl could be bridesmaid for her older sister? My sister is to be married in three weeks. She wants one bridesmaid, and has refused to have me because I am married. She is to be married in a Catholic church. I have heard of married girls being bridesmaids, and I feel very disapointed that my own sister refused me.

ALICE.

I AM sorry, too, for your sake that your sister took this quite unwarranted point of view toward this question of married bridal attendants. Nowadays no distinction is made between married and unmarried people as attendants of either the bride or the groom. It is not unusual now for a bride to choose all, or nearly all, of her attendants from among her married friends. And why not? There is no possible reason that I can see why she shouldn't.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1—With congratulatory telegrams and cards are received in answer to marriage announcements sent, is it proper, or necessary, to acknowledge and thank the sender for same ,and if so, who should acknowledge those received from the husband's friends whom the bride has not met?

2—If the bride answers, how should she sign her name?

PERPLEXED.

YES, such thoughtfulness should be acknowledged with a friendly note of "thank you for your kind thought." The bride would write a note of appreciation to every sender of such a message, and the groom would undoubtedly wish to write a note, too, to each of his friends who sent telegrams.

2—This is the correct form for the signature of the bride:

Most Sincerely Yours,
Mary Smith Brown.

To her close friends she would use "Devotedly yours," or "Affectionately yours," or "Lovingly yours," and would sign only "M[illegible]."

A Story of Gay Life at Harvard; a Battle of Hearts Between Girls

CHAPTER 38

"Bee," said Dolly plaintively "won't you please wake up? It's after eight. And I've called you three times."

"'Wake'!"

"You are not!"

"Am so!"

To prove her contention Bee opened her eyes and struggled to a sitting position. Having proved it, she fell back with a moan. "Heaven pity the working girl! I mean the one called Bee with the hard hearted roommate."

"If it wasn't for my hard heart, you'd never get up."

"No," sighing. "And wouldn't it be grand!"

After an interval Bee sat erect again and began to untie the shred of veiling that bound and preserved the waves of her red-gold hair. "Well!" she said. "Miss Quinn, I believe. How are you? Let me look at you, woman. I've hardly seen you for two whole days."

"Hasn't it been the darndest thing!" agreed Dolly from the dressing table.

"Yesterday morning," Bee recited "you were gone befor eI was three-fifth conscious. I came home about 6 p. m. to dress—no sign of you. I went out to food and a movie with Nick and got in again about 11—still no sign. And you hadn't come when I went to sleep. Now! Kindly answer auntie: where, why and who with?"

"Well," said Dolly, "When you were here at 6 I was having tea at Ray Curtis Elliott's studio. You see, I worked for him from 3 o'clock on—I was at Apeda's before that, and at Mr. Fernando's all morning until my appointment with the art editor of Levity—"

"Say, how about that? How'd you come out?"

"He bought the drawings."

"Honestly, Dolly?"

"Um-hum. Both of 'em. Twenty dollars apiece." Dolly twisted around on the dressing table bench, presenting a radiant face and blue eyes a-sparkle. "And he wants more! And another thing: the Hostess Shop—remember I told you last week about interviewing them?—well, they've given me an order for bridge tallies, 16 dozen, four different designs, four dozen of each—"

"Wait a minute," said Bee, the practical. "Before I bust into hallelujahs, tell me—when do you think you're going to find time to do all this? You haven't any time to say 'Jack Robinson' as it is. Though I never could see," she mused, "any special percentage in saying 'Jack Robinson.' After all, does it get you a seat in the subway?"

"I'm going to take time," Dolly averred seriously. "I've figured it all out. I'm going to devote one day a week to my own work. On that one day I don't care who calls me—I don't care if Fisher and Flagg and LeGatta and Neysa McMein send me engraved invitations to come and pose—I'm not going to budge."

'This Sounds to Me Like the Beginning of Something'

"One day a week," said Bee thoughtfully. "Sixteen dozen bridge tallies. And your stuff for the Manhattanite, and this new Levity thing—Are you sure one day a week will be enough?"

"Right now it will, with Sundays and some evening. I hope it won't be enough for very long."

Bee was still sitting in bed, winding her wisp of veil around two fingers. "You know," she observed, "this sounds to me like the beginning of something."

"It does to me," said Dolly, luminous-eyed. "It sounds like the beginning of everything. Everything I've wanted. Now if only things keep breaking for me the way they have lately—"

"They will," Bee assured her. "Things always break—if you keep hammering at 'em hard enough." She unwound the veil and rewound it; held it up on her fingers and surveyed it absently. "The longer I live Dolly, the more I'm convinced that there's no such thing as luck. Remember that, will you? Nobody's just lucky. The kid with the silver spoon in his mouth wasn't born with it; he bit it away from the doctor when the doctor put it in and said, 'Say Ah-h.'"

She slid out of bed and pattered across to hug Dolly fervently, chokingly, from behind. "Little monkey! I don't often slop over—but there isn't anybody ever going to be gladder of the things you do—"

This unwonted display of sentiment so embarrassed Bee herself and so touched Dolly that conversation between them was for some minutes afterwards at a standstill. Each busied herself with dressing. Bee hummed ragtime airily. Dolly debated between the powder blue sport dress held aloft by her right hand and the pale yellow flannel raised similarly by her left and thought, "Darling Bee. There's nobody in the world quite like her."

Bee said finally, "You were telling me about tea at Elliott's. Go on with the story. Who-all was there? He always has a gang."

"Gang is the word! About 20 when I left, and they were still straggling in." Dolly smiled. "I love the people you meet there, though, don't you? Artists and writers and actors and actresses—people who do things—I think they're fascinating."

She mentioned several of Elliott's guests by their more or less famous names, and supplied a few items of interest. . . . The girl who had written the gold-digger story everyone was so wild about had been present "—and she's a little bit of a thing, Bee! Much littler than I am. With a cute short raggedy bob and the best-looking dress on." The leading lady of a musical show had demonstrated that new dance called the Black Bottom, which appeared easy of execution but was not. And the father of a popular comic strip had drawn his leading character on the inside of an empty match folder "like lightning" and autographed it for Dolly. . . .

"And," said Bee, "Ray Curtis Elliott? What did he do, if anything?"

"He proposed to me."

"I knew he would! The last time I saw him with you I said to myself, 'It won't be long now.' So! And what did you tell him?"

"No."

"Good!"

'I Wish I Cared Enough to Say Yes,' Declared Dolly

"But I wish," continued Dolly, "I cared enough about him to say yes. I don't, but I wish I did. Think who he is, Bee! Imagine being Mrs. Ray Curtis Elliott!"

"I can imagine worse things," said Bee, "but not many. The woman who marries Elliott will work her fingers to the bone plucking blond hairs off his coat lapels. And that's that. What did you do after tea?"

"I came back here and dressed—you'd left then, that was about 7—and went to dinner at the Ambassador with Mark Bentley. And then to see the "Scandals." And then for a ride."

"Mark Bentley is your little collegiate friend?"

"He's my little collegiate friend."

"How are things at good old Siwash?"

"Amherst," corrected Dolly gravely. "Things are rather peaceful, I suppose. This is vacation still—first of September."

They had migrated into the living room now and were preparing their breakfast. Dolly pounded two nail holes in the top of a condensed milk can, using a French-heeled slipper of Bee's as her precarious mallet. She picked up the can and inspected it with keen concentration. "He gave me his fraternity pin."

"No!"

"He did."

"His frat pin!" Bee was visibly and audibly awed. "Well! I've heard of models being awarded diamond bracelets and mink coats and other trifling trinkets—but a frat pin! You're getting in the debutante class."

"Don't say 'frat,' Bee," advised Dolly gently. "Say 'fraternity.'" Her eyes begged Bee's pardon for this, and she added apologetically, "They do."

Bee giggled. "Don't Sunday-clothes me, young lady! 'Frat' I said and 'frat' I'll stick to. I speak in words of one syllable. Where is this glorified Elks' button? I want to see it."

"It's in the other room. In my top bureau drawer, I thought," said Dolly judiciously. "I wouldn't wear it to work. They'd kid me even worse than you're kidding me about it."

The telephone rang.

"Don't take my little quips too much to heart," Bee smiled, rising to answer the summons. "As a matter of fact, I'm all for you. The more men you see, and like, these days, the better pleased I am. You were tied up altogether too long with one. And what a one! Hello?"

"Oh, that's all over," said Dolly. But to no hearer. Bee was intent upon the receiver.

"Yes . . . Yes. Who is calling, please? . . . Hold the line a minute." She turned from the telephone. "Somebody named Alan Pomeroy wants to speak to you."

"Alan—Pomeroy?" Dolly looked her bewilderment. "Why, that's—why, how funny."

She put her palms on the table's edge and her elbows jerked up as though she would impel herself to her feet; then they dropped again. She stared helplessly at Bee. "Alan Pomeroy is Gay's husband. You know who I mean. Jerry's Gay. At least, her married name is Pomeroy, and I'm almost sure her husband's first name's Alan. Bee, what under the sun do you s'pose he wants?"

"Shall I ask him?"

"No." Dolly pushed her chair back. "I'm coming."

The voice on the telephone was a voice you liked; but grave, and quick, and bothered about something. "This is Alan Pomeroy, Miss Quinn. I don't imagine the name conveys anything — we've never met—"

"No," said Dolly, as he hesitated, "But I've met you wife, I think, Mr Pomeroy. About a year ago, in Atlantic City?"

"You remember that, do you?"

"Very well, yes."

"I—" The voice seemed loath to proceed. "I'm afraid I have bad news for you, Miss Quinn. Or perhaps it isn't news, if you—[illegible] see the papers [illegible] at all?"

"Why, no, I didn't."

"Well," said Pomeroy, "it's about Jerry Davis. He's been hurt. Quite badly. He was hurt in an auto[illegible] accident [illegible] before last. He and Mrs. Pomeroy were [illegible], and they went over an embankment out in Connecticut somewhere. They were taken to a hospital. I went down at 5 o'clock yesterday morning, as soon as I got word, and I came back to town late last night to try to locate you. You see, Miss Quinn, Jerry has been calling for [illegible] and he [illegible] your name. We thought you would want to go to him."

Dolly's lips moved without sound. She swallowed, and tried again. "Is he [illegible] to [illegible]?"

"He may," [illegible] simply. "They don't know."

Dolly saw Bee start toward her from across the room, and knew from Bee's face that her own face must be blanched and terror-stricken. "Of course!" she was answering. "Of course I'll go! Now."

"I'll stop for you," said Alan. "Your address is—I only have your phone number."

She gave him the address.

"In about half an hour? If that suits you?"

more terrifying did that work appear to the inhabitants.

At last toward the end of April his dread progress brought him to the little hill town of Poussignot. If it had trembled at the news of his approach, it was almost prostrated with terror at the manner of his descent upon it. A military guard of honor escorted the traveling chaise in which he lounged in his gray coat, plumed hat and sash of office. In the wake of his carriage trailed a cart laden with beams and boards of scaffold[illegible] presently to be assembled into a guillotine and mounted in the market square. Upon the cart's grim load sat an obese, dull-eyed, phlegmatic man, the [illegible] of whom sent a shudder through those who guessed his office. With him was an equally obese woman, blear-eyed, unkempt and slatternly, who drove the cart.

The revolutionary committee of Poussignot which had been duly elected, upon representations from Nevers a year ago, but which had never yet found occasion to function, was hurriedly summoned to assemble in the little town hall overlooking the market square, where the carpenters were already busy with the erection of the scaffold. In muttering awe they awaited the coming of this dread man from the convention who was to rouse that sleepy and hitherto contented township from its revolutionary languor.

He kept them waiting a full hour while he dined, careless of the time he thus wantonly wasted for them. He arrived at last, arrogant and overbearing in manner, arrogant and cruelly sardonic in speech. He found here in Poussignot a state of things which supplied ample material for the mockery which was never very distant from his outlook. Whilst France herself was clattering into ruin under the revolutionary earthquake that shook her from end to end, Poussignot, in the very heart of France, appeared to have gone to sleep, and in its state of incredible somnolence to have pursued the peaceful even tenor of the days of the abominable ancient regime. It was so incredible that, after the first shock of surprise, Chauviniere was moved to inward laughter; laughter at the sleeper and at the thought of the awakening in store.

The many activities that had engaged his mind during the past month had gradually dimmed the memory of Mademoiselle de Montsorbier, and his chagrin at the manner in which she had victimized him. In a measure as her image faded, so too had faded gradually the savage humor which the memory had inspired and which he had vented upon all and sundry.

It was fortunate for Poussignot that by the time he reached it he was growing nauseated by bloodshed and weary of the [illegible] pursuit of [illegible]. The more [illegible] of [illegible] upon which [illegible] himself was [illegible]. His sense of [illegible] was [illegible] reasserting itself. [illegible] to him [illegible] the overawed [illegible] to his passionate [illegible] was permitted no glimpse of this.

In his deep, vibrant voice, pitched on a note of stinging sarcasm, he trounced that revolutionary committee, upbraiding the suppleness of its members, threatening them with the [illegible] they had been so reluctant to dispense unto others, unless he should them more zealous in the sacred service of liberty.

It thoroughly startled them out of their complacency, having preached them a sermon upon the new gospel of Equality which he [illegible] was insufficiently understood in the hills of Poussignot, and having impressed them with the necessity of extirpating all those who were heretical or lukewarm or otherwise a danger to the spread of the glorious new religion, he passed.

He came already informed, it appeared, of certain things in and about Poussignot, and he now produced a list of persons suspected of the new crime of incivisme, in one or another of its many forms.

"This list I am about to read to you, and I invite your serious consideration of the persons whose names you are to hear. For you are not to suppose . . ." And here he broke off to swing half round toward the window which overlooked the square where the scarlet guillotine was in course of construction. To indicate it to them, he flung out an arm in a gesture supremely dramatic. "You are not to suppose that engine, that noble glaive of Freedom, that glorious scythe of Equality, under which the heads of the despots and the privileged have been shorn away, is being erected there merely as an idle ornament to your town."

They trembled, never suspecting that this terrible jester indulged his perverted sense of humor by making a mock for his own secret amusement of the very gospel which he was sent to preach. There were moments when Chauviniere appeared almost to be probing the ignoble depths to which man may be reduced by terror. More than once had he startled his brethren in the Convention itself by solemn fulminations in which it was almost impossible not to suspect sarcasm, yet of which none would have dared to voice that suspicion. One of these moments was upon him now.

Age and the Liability to Disease

By Chas. A. L. Reed, M. D.,
Former President of the American Medical Association.

YOU may have been interested, sometimes annoyed, by the persistence with which your physician, especially a new physician who has not previously known you, insists upon knowing your age. You may think the question trivial, unimportant and just a part of routine.

If, however, you had looked over his shoulder, or the shoulder of his clinical clerk, who is recording the answers, you would have discovered two entries provided for by the blank. One is for the actual age—such as you have reported—and the other is the apparent age.

This distinction is important to the medical mind. The difference between an actual age and an apparent age may tell an important story of the wear and tear of a stressful life or of the ravages of disease, or any one of a dozen other very significant facts.

Age has an important relation to the liability to particular diseases. Thus in infancy and childhood there is a greater liability to [illegible] digestive disturbances, to that form of bone disease that we call rickets, to various eruptions, to enlargement of the glands, especially those of the neck, to the nervous twitchings known as corea, or St. Vitus' dance, croup and various affections of the nose and throat.

A low grade of otherwise unexplained fever in childhood is very liable ultimately to find its explanation in tuberculosis.

During that period called adolescence, the period beginning from 12 to 14 years of age and lasting to the 18th year, there is a particular susceptibility to the blood disorder known as chlorosis, in which there is a lessened amount of the coloring matter of the blood and in which there is a very marked paleness of the features with the lessened power of endurance.

With middle age there comes a tendency to what are called degenerative changes. Among these may be mentioned hardening of the arteries, various heart diseases, rheumatism of the muscles and joints, gallstones, diabetes, the insanities, various forms of paralysis, cancer, chronic Bright's disease and asthma.

All of these groups of symptoms, called diseases, are based upon certain changes in the body which may be averted by more careful attention to the natural laws of right living.

In old age all of these tendencies are increased, with some more added to them. You can see from this why the doctor, who is trying to get a key to your case, who is trying to [illegible] according to the law of [illegible] is interested in knowing your age.

Seek Unknown for Role in 'Miracle' Film

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

NEW YORK, June 13.—Some lucky unknown, now hiding her fame under a light, is about to be dragged into the glare of world-wide publicity. Richard Rowland is determined that only an actress who has not yet appeared in pictures shall play the [illegible] in "The Miracle," made famous on the stage by Lady Diana Manners and other well known actresses.

Apropos of "The Miracle" it might be well to explain the storm clouds that have surrounded this Max Reinhart play since Dick Rowland determined to make a movie of it have been cleared away. Several conferences this last week indicate that the title will be clear this week and by September "The Miracle" will be well on its way.

Apparently Rowland and his confreres believe in Alexander Korda, the Hungarian director, for he is slated to direct "The Miracle" and most of First National's other big pictures.

LUPE VALEZ may not know it, but she is going to receive an offer from First National [illegible] shortly. The same Richard Rowland of whom I wrote concerning "The Miracle" sees in Lupe the perfect type for [illegible] "The Squall." Lupe can take the ukelele and sing and do all the stunts that gave her such a big hand at the United Artists theater in Los Angeles.

AS I write this Joseph Schenck is in Kansas City helping to nominate a Republican candidate for President. When he comes back to [illegible] and Rowland to lend Lupe to [illegible]. [illegible] Milton Sills is [illegible] slated for the father, [illegible] for the mother and Alexander Korda as the director. That is all I know except that "The Squall" will be made with [illegible].

THE independents are not going to be left waiting at the church. The matter of talking devices [illegible] Joe Rock, well known Hollywood independent producer, announcing that he is about to make "The Music Healer" both with talking and color.

Rock is apparently shooting high. He is trying to borrow Frank Borzage from Winfield Sheehan to direct his special. Can you see Winnie letting this offer [illegible]? And never can tell in this business what is [illegible]. [illegible] Jesse Burns and [illegible] Vorhaus are writing the story and continuity. [illegible] is the son of a well-known New York lawyer.

I RAN into Raymond Hitchcock at the Algonquin. Between mouthfuls of rice pudding [illegible] he glanced [illegible] Captain Andy in "The Show Boat," a part which he is slated to play this fall. He tells me he has just written a book called "The Dirty Book," by Raymond Hitchcock.

The joke is, you understand, that there isn't a single censorable line in the entire masterpiece. He also has an [illegible] for a movie which sounded to be practical and interesting. What with talkies Hitchie should be able to put over his stuff with [illegible].

Lecocq a Famous Composer

By COZETTE DOUGLASS

ALEXANDRE LECOCQ was one of the most famous of the French composers of operettas. He was born in Paris on June 3, 1832, and was admitted to the Conservatoire in 1849, being at that time an accomplished pianist. At the Conservatoire he studied harmony with Bazin; composition with Halevy and the organ with Benoist, winning first prize for harmony in 1850 and second prize for fugue in 1852.

Public attention was first attracted to him when he divided with Bizet the first prize for the operetta "Le Docteur Miracle," in a competition which had been instituted by Offenbach.

His first real success was "Fleur de The," produced in 1868. This operetta had a run in Paris of over 100 nights and was also successfully produced in Germany and England.

One success after the other came from his prolific pen and the operettas which he produced met with almost phenomenal success. Over 40 operas, comedy operas and comic operas his gifted pen gave the world and for finish of instrumentation and careful writing they are held to be superior to those of Offenbach and Herve.

In 1894 Lecocq was made a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor.

Perhaps the best known of Lecocq's operettas is "La Fille de Madame Angot," which ran for [illegible] consecutive nights in Paris and has since then gained and retained its initial success and popularity.

Lecocq died in Clifton, Guernsey, on February 15, 1911.

THE OPEN WINDOW season is with us again. That means that ruffles are in vogue for fresh, sheer, cool-looking curtains. If you are planning to change all the curtains in your home during the summer months decorators from a shop I know will suggest them for you or merely choose an incidental piece. Embroidered pin dot Marquisette curtains 2¼ yards long are priced at $4.25 a pair. Cross bar Voile with ruffles, 2¼ yards long, exceptional value, are priced at $3.25 a pair. Other charming curtains at $2 a pair. Mail and telephone orders will be filled.

THE COOL WAVES CALL and a delightful Sea Side Shop answers the call of summer with the newest sea-tossed but sea-worthy bathing suits you'd care to see. Tomboy suits with stripes of fancy weave in chanel, navy, copen and jade are priced at $8.75. Vivid silk suits of printed pussy-willow taffeta, with panties that match and add verve to the effect are priced at $25.

THE PERMANENT SEASON is in full swing and there is always a permanent which will especially suit your particular kind of hair. There is one priced at $20 that comes out in the widest most natural waves you have ever seen. The most important thing about it, however, is the fact that normal texture hair does not have to be finger waved or set, it just falls into a natural wave. It is truly a magic wave!

IT'S RATHER BEST to have your fur coat cleaned without having the lining removed at all before you store it away for the summer. You may have this done for $5. Two per cent. is charged at this same shop for storage and remodelling is done at a very reasonable price. If your coat isn't already stored for the summer it would be well to visit this shop.

CAN YOU PICTURE a store where 40 is a very small size in comparison with the sizes they carry? This store is planned to take care of the larger women. Dresses from 36 bust to 60 may be purchased here in house dresses, and silk dresses. Miss Modern may have some plump friends who will be glad to know about this.

THAT PANAMA HAT that you have stored away because it is so in need of cleaning and reblocking will come out just like new if you take it to a shop where they renovate hats, cleaning panamas, velours and felts at a reasonable price.

PINK BEADS, blue beads, and many strings of pearl beads are laid away somewhere at home, I know. Perhaps it is because you have felt it would be too expensive to have them restrung. You'll find prices much reduced if you go to the right shop, even as low as 35c for restringing. Have your beads all done at once and be the proud possessor of one string to match each of your summertime dresses.

FASTIDIOUS CARE should be taken of your lovely skin to give you the alluring charm desired by [illegible]. Use a cleansing cream that liquifies on the skin—penetrates the pores—and rids them of all impurities. The price is $1.75 a jar, but one jar lasts a long time. If you care to cleanse your face with this cream you will have skin of satin fineness. Please enclose a 2c stamp and I will send you information on the above items. Do not forget your name and address!

DO YOU EARN A SALARY?

By J. J. MUNDY

IT might be a good thing to consider the question, "Am I earning what I am paid?"

This experiment might surprise you. Try it!

Every night, go over what you have accomplished during the day and ask yourself if you have earned what you have received for it.

Tonight, would you be willing to pay a man for doing, as you have done it, the work allotted to you for which you will be paid?

If you conclude that you are not producing as you should, it would be well for you to "step on the gas" a bit.

The successful employer, or the man who is responsible for your work, is thinking you over and will soon realize whether you are worth your hire.

The result may be serious to you.

This thought is not intended to convey the impression that only what you produce with your hands is worth money and should be credited to you.

Head work that saves time and makes valuable suggestions counts big.

How are you planning, for yourself and others, to make the most? As an employe or as a member of the firm, you make the most when you work for your organization, and that does not mean you may spare yourself.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By HELEN ROWLAND

TALKING is an accomplishment in a man—an affliction in a woman.

Sweet are the memories of the day when courting a girl was not a financial problem, love wasn't a wrestling match, and getting a man to the altar was not a matter of sheer brute force.

In a sentimental moment an Englishman will tramp out into the country, gather a bunch of wild flowers and bring them to a woman with his own hands—an American will go down and pawn his watch and send her orchids.

* * *

A man with a single-track mind is not hard to find; it's one with a single-track heart that most women are vainly looking for.

Now that the spring moving and cleaning are all over, a man can go home as late as he pleases without the fear of being assassinated by a murderous hearted sofa or felled to earth by a curtain-rod.

Marriage is the point at which a man stops calling a woman "Darling" and begins calling her "Say."

To a man marriage means giving up four out of five of the chiffonier drawers and all the hooks in the closet; to a woman, it means giving up four out of five of her wishes and all of her opinions.

You can make a man believe that you are reserved, prudish, cautious, cold or a flat-tire—but never that the reason why you don't want to kiss him is just because you don't WANT to kiss him!

* * *

CHILD AND FAIRY TALES

By CONSTANCE CAMERON.

DON'T you know that one story is as real as another to a child, whether it happens to be the exact truth or a lively tale born in his imagination? Telling you about seeing the fire engines clanging up the street is thrilling if your child has seen it, but it is just as thrilling to him if he "makes up" the tale and vividly describes it to you. Everything interests him, and he likes to recount what he has seen.

At an early age he discovers that he can make the event more interesting and hold your attention more securely if he adds a bit here and there. It is the forming of his imagination and the growing of his sense of power, when he selects events which might have happened and dramatically tells them to you, flattered by your rapt attention and thrilled with his power of evolving a story which sounds exciting and holds you spellbound, thinking of nothing but him and his recital until he has finished.

If, when Mary comes home from school and tells you she saw an automobile smash into a telephone pole and slide halfway up the pole, then hurtle down to the ground and turn a somersault, if—at the conclusion, you say indignantly, "Mary, that's a lie!" you are cruelly dwarfing her growing imagination, and you are also giving her the knowledge that by distorting the truth about things (if she tries long enough and does it cleverly enough) she can fool you, and fool you very thoroughly. Children are not liars until we tell them they are, and teach them how to be.

Imagination is the foundation for big work later on. There had to be imagination, and a vivid one, before a great building ever arose, or a big bridge ever spanned a river; or a brilliant painting was given to the world, to say nothing of the stories which take us out of our everyday surroundings, giving us enjoyment and relaxation in reading them.

Let your child know that these tales he "makes up" are perfectly permissible and good, and interesting. Help him to construct make-believe stories. BUT, insist that he tell you that it is a "play-story" when he recites to you a wondrous legend of his own concocting. If you ask him a direct question, say, "Now this time I only want to hear exactly what happened. This must be the truth. We shall make up a great big play-story about it later, but NOW I just want to know how it all happened."

You will always receive the truth until you make your child afraid to tell you the truth. If he tells you exactly how a window was broken when they were playing "duck-on-the-rock," simply tell him that you were sorry about it, and that you will replace it for Mrs. Brown, but the money will have to be returned to you at so much a week out of his allowance. Tell him you are very glad that he told you exactly the facts about the accident, for only in knowing the truth can any mistake be taken care of and made right.

Make the punishment fit what has happened. Don't scold. Simply make the child understand that the money for the breakage shall come out of his pocket. That is only just and fair, and a child reacts to justice just as you do. He knows whether you are "lacing it into him" or whether you are merely doing what is fair.

When your child confesses to you some misdemeanor, talk the matter over quietly with him and decide without anger what shall be done about it. And never forget to tell him that you are very glad, that no matter what he did, he has come to you and told you about it truthfully.

If you want facts from your child, never frighten him for having told them to you. Let him learn that you are calm and just—then he will grow up, bringing you all his problems with perfect candor and frankness. His trials and stumbling blocks are not so different from yours, after all, and it won't be hard to understand them and to help him if he knows that he can tell you the whole truth about them.

DEVELOP PRIDE IN A CITY'S INDUSTRIES

By B. C. FORBES

BALTIMORE, June 13—Here's a suggestion for other cities. Baltimore Products Week was recently celebrated. Every progressive merchant in the city devoted his windows to Baltimore-made products. A few backward-looking storekeepers sneered at the idea. The people would not be interested. It would be a waste of valuable show space. And it would be free advertising for the manufacturers.

B. C. Forbes

The results astonished even the most optimistic. Crowds thronged the streets every day. Visitors by the thousand came from nearby localities. At many points interest in exhibits was so great that sidewalks were blocked. This was especially true where manufacturers staged actual demonstrations—by employes and machinery—of their manufacturing processes.

On all sides amazement was expressed over the extraordinary extent and variety of things made within their own city. It was an education and a revelation. Many windows carried decorated placards giving facts and figures about the extent of the exhibitor's operations.

Sales went up. But, much more important, Baltimore products week sold Baltimore to its own citizens. They caught a truer picture, a better conception, a larger vision of Baltimore as a city of manufactures.

Fortunately, Baltimore is not a one-industry city. It has more than 2000 manufacturing plants making more than 2000 different commodities. It ranks seventh among the nation's industrial centers.

You can understand how diversified an exhibition it was possible to stage in the city's thousands of shop windows. Other cities having a wide variety of manufactures could profitably adopt this practical idea, valuable in immediate results and still more valuable in its effect on local civic pride. Most of us get into such a daily routine, such a rut, that we rarely ever think of visiting any local plant. And most manufacturers regard their operations as too commonplace to interest the public. Baltimore's experience proves that people are interested in seeing things they have never seen before, provided the things can be brought under their eyes.

While Baltimore has not become a towering center for newer industries, it has not recently been standing still by any means.

Its manufacturing industries employ more than 85,000 workers, producing approximately $700,000,000 worth annually. Its industrial payroll annually equals almost a dollar for every man, woman and child in the United States.

It has the largest American sugar refinery on tidewater; the largest spice factory in the country. It makes more straw hats than any other city, New York alone excepted. It has the world's largest plant for manufacturing sulphuric acid and phosphates; the world's largest tin decorating plant. It leads the world in manufacturing sealing devices and bottle stoppers. Its men's clothing industry employs 10,000 workers; its metal industries between 15,000 and 20,000.

In meat packing and slaughtering, Baltimore ranks tenth in the whole country, and ninth in the manufacture of candy products. It is one of only three cities in America which know how to make bells and chimes. It is one of the leading cities in the manufacture of pianos.

It has the largest copper refining plant in the world, refining approximately 20 per cent of the world's supply. The largest steel plant on tidewater (Schwab's) is located within ten miles of the heart of Baltimore. Baltimore is the largest fertilizer-producing center in America. It is famous for its fine printing, engraving and lithographing, having been a pioneer in the latter.

The city claims the honor of having been the first in the United States to establish an industrial bureau to bring about the scientific location of manufacturing plants.

The modest state of Maryland leads the country in tomato packing, with Baltimore putting up about half the total. Only five states exceed it in the canning of vegetables, fruits and oysters—the excellence of Chesapeake Bay's sea food is known far and wide.

Last year was a banner one in attracting new industries. The relatively low cost of living here doubtless appeals to those seeking locations for plants. The National Industrial Conference board of New York has issued a comprehensive analysis covering 31 of our leading cities. Using 100 as the average cost of living in the United States, the cost in Baltimore is only 48.8, the lowest of all. The only other cities where the cost is under 90 per cent are given as Richmond, Scranton, Cincinnati and New Orleans.

The new Baltimore delights to show and to speak of its record and prospects as a port—last year it ranked second to New York as a foreign trade tonnage port.

Radio Dialog

SOMEHOW, the broadcast of the Republican National Convention's opening at Kansas City sounded unreal. It didn't seem like radio to have no interludes of "Get Out and Get Under the Moon" and such ditties. One could not help being impressed, however, by the fact that the much maligned announcers at least say something when they are talking. This is not always true of political orators.

Convention Broadcast

THE SPEECHES adhered to time-honored standards. In political campaigns, phrases and words become hoary war horses. Here's what millions of eager voters heard, "Every citizen, wherever he may be...Civilians...Guvvament...as yet...outstanding...bringing the Atlantic to the Pacific...possibilities...electrified...world a neighborhood...will always be the concern of the party ...an aroused public consciousness ...that is the task which faces us ...self preservation...principuls of ...expenditure of billions in improvements...span of human life... into the national consciousness the conviction...maintaining the resources...stands for the enforcement...without fear or favor... highest standard of public service...

Operetta

PHILCO'S light opera presentation tonight at 9 o'clock will be Victor Herbert's "Her Regiment." The story, by William Le Baron, is rather involved, and concerns a couple of demoiselles and French youths, titles, disguises, angry bulls, farmers, love and kisses.

THE BOSTON AMERICAN'S PLATFORM FOR BOSTON AND NEW ENGLAND

For BOSTON:
1—Clean streets.
2—Solution of traffic and parking problems.
3—Better pay for honest public service.
4—An airport SECOND TO NONE.
5—Erection of a MUNICIPAL AUDITORIUM to compare with any in the land, in order that Boston, properly supplied with first-class hotels, may be the premier convention city of the U. S. A.

For NEW ENGLAND:
1—Weld the six States into a unit through the activities of the New England Council, thus creating a community consciousness.
2—Promote intercourse with Central and South America, encouraging New Englanders to "turn to the sea" again.
3—Keeping everlastingly at the job of telling the rest of the country all about our unique advantages as Summer and Winter Playground of the Nation.
4—Foster the prosperity of our industries through (1) greater efficiency in production and (2) the use of modern methods in merchandising.
5—Promote in every way such natural resources as forests, water powers and fisheries.
6—Assist New England agriculture to better marketing methods.

Puzzled

Foreign Students Cannot Fathom Our Politics

British editors, commenting on our Presidential campaign, admit that they can make nothing of it.

They are used to campaigns in which the contending parties have sharply drawn issues. But they are unable to discern the difference between our major parties. Indeed, one editor says the Republican and Democratic parties are "nothing but two rival electioneering organizations striving for office and spoils."

That, of course, is not accurate. Between them are fundamental and traditional differences which go to the roots of political philosophy.

The Republican party, though born as a moral protest against slavery and the slave oligarchy, has become the chief servant of wealth and privilege.

The Democratic party, despite many backslidings, is still in instinct the champion of the common rights.

Yet in practice these dividing lines are so often blurred that you can't be surprised at foreign misunderstanding.

Our keenest home observers would find difficult the task of delimiting the two parties on the basis of the records of their representatives in recent Congresses.

It will be surprising, too, if the two coming national platforms shall do much to clarify the thinking of foreigners anxious to know what stakes our great quadrennial race is for, in addition to the offices.

Rewarded

Marine Corps Flier Gets Highest Possible Honor

Another type of flying was honored in Washington the other day—flights almost literally into and safely out of the jaws of death.

The hero was Lieutenant C. Frank Schilt, aviator of the Marine Corps, and recipient at the President's hands of the coveted Congressional Medal of Honor.

Schilt last January, ten times in three successive days, flew through bullets from Sandino's rebels to take food and ammunition to ambushed "devil dogs" and to bring out wounded comrades.

It was a voluntary service, typical of the bravery for which the Marine Corps is famous. It was an example of the spirit in which our boys in uniform are doing their arduous tasks in Nicaragua, fired at, not only by bandits in the bush, but by snipers at home.

And the staging in front of the White House of a conspicuous ceremonial of appreciation is a fitting answer to those who would have the American people believe ill of such heroic men.

We do not give titles of nobility. Such gallantry is, however, its own testimonial.

Health Is Beauty

She Is a Healthy, Beautiful Spanish Girl

SENORITA LILI DE ALVAREZ

SOME LILI!

The photographer who took this snapshot at Cannes, on the south coast of France, really snapped something worth while.

The lady, Lili de Alvarez, is the female lawn tennis champion of all Spain. Discreetly observing the feet and legs of this charming girl, you see that she probably moves around the tennis court quite rapidly.

The picture of beauty on the rocks, smiling at some fortunate person below, is printed as a sermon for young American girls that try to starve themselves, foolishly imagining that there is beauty in a skinny skeleton.

There is no real beauty without ABUNDANT HEALTH, warm blood in the veins, bones well covered with firm flesh,

BLINDNESS TOWARD LIFE IS BAD

By DR. FRANK CRANE

BARON GUNTHER VON HUENEFELD, of the Bremen crew, which successfully made the flight westward across the Atlantic sometime ago, writes that the greatest enemy they had to overcome in their flight was fog.

Think of whirling through the air at 100 miles an hour or so and not being able to see two lengths of the plane ahead of you! It is like flying in thick night.

In addition to this fog a heavy wind was blowing and the compass was out of order, which made it difficult for the navigators of the air to plan their course.

Of all dangers of the sea and the air over the ocean the greatest is fog.

An inability to see constitutes the greatest danger of life everywhere. If we could all see plainly there would be fewer misunderstandings.

You may know that when a man wrongs you it is because he does not understand, for if he did he would not do so, and when you are angry with him because of his tort your anger has blinded you so that you cannot see.

We all do much fumbling in the dark in our passage from the cradle to the grave, and those who can clear our vision render invaluable service to humanity.

We are continually bumping our nose and stubbing our toes because of the darkness that fills our eyes. Much trouble in the divorce courts could be obviated could both parties see clearly and were they not blinded by some sort of passion.

Trouble between fathers and children would not be of so frequent occurrence if all could see clearly.

Perhaps the best prayer anyone can make is for wisdom and vision. The greatest mistake we all make is in not seeing love. We stumble through this world thinking that everybody is hostile to us, when all around us are hearts aching with a desire to help us.

The worst blindness that can befall humanity is this blindness toward life.

Spurgeon has well said somewhere that, "To trust everybody is to be bitten sometimes, but to trust nobody is to be devoured."

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

ARE you all tuckered out taking care of a three-room apartment, one small child and an average husband? Do you weep big, wet tears of self-pity when you think what a drudge you are? Then cast your eye on this record.

She's an honorary member of the American Society of Industrial Engineers, and holder of a doctor's degree in psychology. She's making a big success of her profession as industrial psychologist, carrying on her dead husband's engineering work, delivering lectures and writing books. And while she has been doing all this, she has borne and raised eleven, husky American youngsters. Her name is Lillian Gilbreth. She has written a book about it, called "LIVING WITH OUR CHILDREN," and it's a wow.

How did she do it? She did it by PLANNING.

Mrs. Gilbreth believes that family life should be planned like any other industry. Her book opens with these two sentences:

"WHY SHOULD NOT A FAMILY HAVE A PLAN? EVERY EDUCATIONAL OR INDUSTRIAL PROJECT HAS ONE."

There's the key to this woman's success. She tackled the problem of family life as she would have tackled a labor problem in one of her factories. She made a scientific job of mothering, not a sentimental incident. As each child arrived he entered into an organization and all his training was related to the spiritual and industrial life of that organization.

She didn't say: "Yes, Willie, you can have that tack hammer, only for goodness' sake, quit pestering me."

Nor did she say: "Well, I suppose I've got to let you go to that party, Mary, though I think it's just terrible; but anything for peace."

She had definite principles about tack hammers and parties. She knew slipshod methods wouldn't produce prosperity and harmony in a home any more than they would in an office, and she acted accordingly.

Here's a sample of the sort of planning that put over the Gilbreth family.

"A certain big family was brought up without any gate at the top of the many stairs because their father felt that the crawling baby, if the gate were once left open, would naturally fall down. So the gate was left off and the father taught each of the many babies to crawl to the stairs, turn around and back carefully down until he was old enough to walk down in the usual manner. In the same way, napkins should never be tucked into the neck of a youngster's dress or suit, no matter how small he is, for that is accepted as bad manners as he gets older. Bibs he may have, for they are associated with babyhood, but when he graduates to a table napkin he should use it as properly trained adults use theirs."

TREAT HIM LIKE A MEMBER OF THE FIRM

Think of the patience such training requires from the parent—the control, self sacrifice and determination. That's real love. Any animal can cuddle or cuff its offspring, but it takes great fathers and noble mothers to TRAIN them.

New York Day by Day
by O.O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, June 13—Every evening at dusk a small army of gray haired motherly women move toward the Rialto and pass through the stage entrances of theaters to their tasks. They are wardrobe mistresses—often dull echoes of a glamorous past.

It is their job to take care of costumes and keep them in repair but they function in a larger way. Their lives have usually been entirely cast in the theater, chiefly in small character parts, although some have taken important roles and a few have seen their names in lights.

They are frequently mother confessors to chorus girls, and some have been adopted as stage mothers, sharing apartments with their charges. They are stumbling blocks in the path of the back stage door Johns. Of all people back stage they are the best beloved.

Most of them are devoutly religious and have a tender sympathy for birdlings so often trapped in the Broadway pitfalls. Secrets have been confided to them that would rock the front pages, but they maintain a tight-lipped silence.

They have read the mash notes of prominent husbands straying from the family fireside to canter along the White Way. They are equally wise to the fact that the cute little blonde who last night accepted the cabriolet from the rich bounder will next week elope with the trap drummer.

Despite humble posts in the theatrical background, they often display a keen and extremely valuable stage sense. One has for years sat in the front of the house with the producers, who employ her to offer suggestions during the final rehearsals. And her ideas are invariably adopted.

When a company leaves New York to go trouping, the wardrobe mistress often becomes the official chaperone for younger girls. They consult her, and, as a rule, accept her advice. And in this way the wardrobe mistress has kept many straying lambkins out of dangerous paths.

RESTAURANTS and hotel dining rooms have computed there are 500,000 people in New York who breakfast after mid-day. Invariably late breakfasters are heavy coffee drinkers.

DAMON RUNYON, the celebrated sport writer, is the reputed king of the Broadway coffee consumers. Mr. Runyon is a teetotaler so far as alcoholic beverages are concerned, but he has been known to toss down 15 cups of java at a sitting. The late Diamond Jim Brady often gulped a dozen glasses of orange juice before breakfast.

OLD RECTOR'S had a systematic worldling who ate a breakfast of soft boiled eggs, toast and coffee at exactly 11 a. m. for 12 consecutive years. And his face reflected his mechanical existence. It had the blank button-eyed expression of a mattress.

THERE is a distinguished editor whose favorite breakfast dish is onion soup. He acquired the taste during student days in Paris and has succeeded in having it listed regularly on the menu at the hotel where he lives.

SUTTON PLACE was an effort to carve a social roost out of the slums. It is on the banks of the East river with the glowering Blackwell Island prison at the doorstep. A few pardon-the-glove names from the Social Register lodged there, but in the last few months the section seems to have gone ultra-Bohemian. Among the latest to signify their intention to rent quarters there are Irving Berlin and Alexander Woollcott. Elizabeth Marbury is a resident.

ONE of the depressing morning views from Sutton Place is the dingy tugs leaving with their cargoes of human misery for Blackwell's Island. And not even calling it Welfare Island brightens the picture.

"NOSE painting" is another descriptive term for getting that way.

World Struggles for Money

How Many Names It Has

How many American words meaning "money" can you remember?

Dr. Vizetelly quotes fifty such words, leaving out many well known. Many things have been used for money—from wood, leather, shells, slaves and cattle, to gold.

Our word "money" comes from Moneta, surname of Juno, Roman currency being coined in the Temple of Juno Moneta.

Millions spend their lives collecting money, with never a thought for the ancient divinity.

Wise men of all times have written about money, from Aristotle to Henry George, including Copernicus, Locke, Newton, John Stuart Mill, but no one has convinced men that true wisdom is to get money enough to insure independence, freedom from slavery, and then think of other things.

Health Is Beauty

the bright eye, clear skin and good, NATURAL color that go with health.

Those things make real beauty, and you can't imitate them by smearing lip salve and rouge on a halfway skeleton.

Therefore, girls, exercise, keep in the open air, bathe in salt water, if you can, or in fresh water at least every day. Put cold water on your chest, wrists and ankles after each warm bath.

Eat plenty, don't try to be skeletons, DON'T PAINT.

Advice largely WASTED, of course, but repetition works wonders.
